KAISER ROUTED IN FRANCE

NATIONAL GAIN FOR G. O. P.

By LAURENCE TODD,
Staff correspondent of the American.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Belated returns from yesterday's election show that the Democrats came perilously near to losing control of Congress. It is not yet absolutely certain that they escaped that danger, but the probabilities are that they will have a small working majority to sustain President Wilson in his program.

The Senate is under Democratic control.

According to revised reports received here the make up of the next House of Representatives will be as follows: Democrats, 221; Republicans, 204; Progressives, 8; Socialists, 1; Prohibitionist, 1.

If the Progressives, the Socialist and the Prohibitionist should join the Republicans on any issue before the Sixty-fourth Congress the Democrats would have only the narrow margin of seven votes on which to count. The Democratic majority in the last Congress was 141.

The party lineup in the Sixty-third Congress was as follows: Democrats, 285; Republicans, 129; Progressives, 13. There were six vacancies in the last Congress, due to resignations of Democrats.

Republican leaders were jubilant today over the result of the Congressional elections and the defeat suffered by the Progressives in New York and Pennsylvania. They declare that the great Republican gain in the House of Representatives was a rebuke to President Wilson and the Democratic party for their legislative program, and that the great Republican victories in the Progressive and Keystone States showed that the leadership of ex-President Theodore Roosevelt had been spurned by the Republicans who had left the old party's fold to enlist under his banner.

PREDICT UNITED PARTY.

That the Republican party will present a united front in 1916 and overthrow the Democratic administration after only four years of service, was the confident declaration made by the G. O. P. leaders here. They intimated, without directly saying so, that even if Colonel Roosevelt became a presidential candidate he would be unable to prevent a national Republican sweep.

Surprise was caused by the strong showing of the Republicans in Pennsylvania and New York, where there were agencies at work, particularly the Progressive party, to weaken Republican strength.

The result in Connecticut has also caused astonishment. In the "Nutmeg State" the Republicans elected their candidate for Governor, Marcus H. Holcomb, by a majority of landslide proportions.

Massachusetts elected a Democratic Governor, returning Governor Walsh to office, but his plurality was greatly reduced.

One of the few distinct administration victories was in Indiana, where U. S. Senator Benjamin Shively, a warm supporter of the policies of President Wilson, was re-elected.

The Republicans lost Tennessee according to late returns, Governor Ben Hooper, Republican, being defeated by his Democratic opponent, Thomas C. Rye. Early reports that Roger C. Sullivan, the so-called Democratic boss in Illinois, had been elected United States Senator were overturned by late returns. The indications were that Lawrence Y. Sherman, Republican, would be returned to the Senate by a small plurality. In Wisconsin the "Independent Progressive Republicans," led by Senator LaFollette, got a jolt. Late re-

Illegal Vote Cases in Chelsea Court

John L. Andrews of No. 47 Shurtleff street, Chelsea, admitted in Chelsea Court today to being illegally registered, because he is not naturalized, also because he registered from No. 160 Congress avenue. He is a native of Nova Scotia, thirty-three years old and married. He was held in $300 to November 7.

Three other men, arrested on the same charge, after voting in Chelsea yesterday, pleaded not guilty and were held in $300 each until November 7. They are Ralph Scanlon, No. 22 Walnut street; James McGuire, No. 132 Chelsea street, Everett, and William F. Hagan, No. 53 Beacon street, Chelsea.

Andrew J. and John L. Sweeney, brothers, of No. 132 Congress avenue, were today arrested charged with aiding and abetting John L. Andrews to vote illegally. The police claim they brought Andrews to City Hall and had him register falsely.

Sherman Defeats Sullivan by 15,000

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Lawrence Y. Sherman was returned to the U. S. Senate by about 15,000 plurality over Roger C. Sullivan, and a Republican majority of Congressmen were named from Illinois in yesterday's election, according to fairly complete returns today.

Sullivan, however, early today refused to concede Sherman's election. Illinois chose 13 Republicans, 13 Democrats and one Progressive Congressmen. Uncle Joe" Cannon of Danville is probably elected by about 550 or 600. Mann, Foss, Madden, Britten and the other Republican leaders in Congress were all re-elected. The Progressives re-elected only Ira C. Copley of the Eleventh District.

Edison Says: 'I Must Achieve Something'

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—"I must accomplish something; I have talked enough," was the gloomy statement of Thomas A. Edison when he arrived home at West Orange, N. J., from his two weeks' vacation. Mr. Edison is the automobile manufacturer, in Detroit.

From the railroad station Mr. Edison went straight to his laboratory to "make up." He said, for the work he had "neglected for two weeks."

He said that during his trip he had made many notes for prospective experiments. It is believed to be possible that Mr. Edison may "accomplish something."

Taft 'Reconciled to T. R. Desuetude'

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 4.—Ex-President Taft, in discussing the election returns, said: "I am glad to hear the good news of a Republican victory. I hope that it will lend to assist business and restore confidence. Incidentally, the Progressive party and its leader seem to be relegated to innocuous desuetude. I am thoroughly reconciled to this result."

Jack Johnson Now Ready to Risk Title

Jack Johnson, champion of the world, is now ready to fight again as the following telegram proves.

LONDON, Evening Journal, N. Y., I am willing to match any man in the world in a twenty-round contest for the heavyweight championship under the personal direction of Richard C. Klegin, who leaves today for New York to receive bids and to negotiate on my behalf.

JACK JOHNSON,
Champion of the world.

Olney's Majority Over Howard is 626

The returns from Brockton, which came in very late, gave Richard Olney, 3d, a majority of 626 in the district in his race for Congress. His Republican opponent, Mayor Howard of Brockton, ran 160 votes behind Olney in Brockton.

For Attorney-General.

Governor Walsh's plurality was swelled about 1,000 votes by the corrected returns from all parts of the State today. His lead over Mr. McCall with the vote of the State complete is 9,536.

The first returns put his lead at 8,479, but corrections added 1,000 to his figure.

Governor Walsh's total was 210,024. Over his last year's vote of 183,267 he gained more than 10 per cent. He won back the 20,000 votes that last year went to Mr. Foss.

Mr. McCall's total was 200,488. His ante-election prediction that he would poll 200,000 votes was thus verified. He increased the Republican vote of last year by about 60 per cent., but all his gains came from the Progressive strength, and they were not enough to win.

Mr. Walker's total is 32,405. Mr. Bird last year got 127,655. Mr. Walker thus lost almost 100,000 votes, or 80 per cent. of the Progressive strength.

Aside from the head of the ticket, the Republicans appear to have been uniformly successful. They elected every other State officer, by pluralities ranging from 7,500 to 17,000. Lieutenant-Governor Barry lost most heavily, for Grafton Cushing defeated him by about 17,000 votes.

The Republican sweep carried in the Congressional representation from Massachusetts also. The next Congress will have twelve instead of eight Republicans, and four instead of eight Democrats.

Republican Congressmen Treadway, Gillett, Paige, Wnslow, Rogers, Gardner, Roberts and Greene were re-elected; Democratic Congressmen Phelan and Gallivan were re-elected. Congressman Dietrick was defeated by only about 700 by E. W. Ballinger, Republican, in the English District. Mitchell was defeated by W. H. Carter of Natick Republican, in the Thirteenth; Thatcher was defeated in the Sixteenth by Joseph Walsh of New Bedford, Republican; Peter F. Tague

POSTPONE TRIP OF CECILIE

BAR HARBOR, Me., Nov. 4.—The departure for Boston of the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie, scheduled for today, was postponed because of engine trouble in the machinery of one of the U. S. torpedo boat destroyers which will convoy the big liner. The liner will sail when the repairs are finished.

The big German steamship has been interned here since her thrilling race for the United States shores after turning back when nearly across the Atlantic on her trip to Europe after the outbreak of the war. The Cecilie has been attached by the shippers of the $10,000,000 in gold which the liner carried on the eventful trip. The shippers allege damages in failure to deliver the gold. The suit is for $1,250,000.

By order of the Federal Courts the liner will be in charge of United States Marshal John H. P. S. Wilson of Maine, and Chief Deputy Marshal Charles E. Morse of Boston. The latter will take charge of the liner when she anchors in Boston harbor.

Both Great Britain and France have promised not to molest the liner on the trip to Boston.

Cross of Legion of Honor for 19 British

LONDON, Nov. 4—It is announced that the following eight colonels have been promoted to be major generals as a reward for gallant conduct in the field: Sir David Henderson, Henry F. M. Wilson, James A. L. Haldane, Henry S. Horne, Frederick D. V. Wing, Hubert De La P. Gough, Edward S. Bulfin and Aylmer Hunter Weston.

The President of France has bestowed the cross of an officer of the Legion of Honor on nineteen British officers and the cross of the Chevalier on 100 others for gallantry during operations between August 21 and 30.

Hill Sends $25,000 to Belgian King

ST. PAUL, Nov. 4.—James J. Hill, the railroad magnate, has just forwarded his personal contribution of $25,000 to King Albert of Belgium for the relief of the suffering people of that little country. This is exclusive of the fund now being raised by his daughter. Mr. Hill is personally acquainted with King Albert, and when the latter was in the United States several years ago he was a guest at the Hill mansion here, while passing through St. Paul on his way from the coast.

Turkish Force Gather to Blow Up Suez Ganal

LONDON, Nov. 4.—A Central News dispatch from Berlin says that large Turkish force has assembled on the Asiatic shore of the Suez Canal and intends to blow in that waterway and form a dam with bags of sand as soon as the Turkish army advances on Egypt.

Gallivan to Ask for $5,000,000 U. S. Building in Hub

If Congressman James A. Gallivan of South Boston has his way Boston will have a new central postoffice and federal building. He said today:

"I shall file a bill for an appropriation of $5,000,000 for such a building as soon as the term opens on the first Monday in December. I wanted to last term, but the program was too well mapped out.

"I am grateful for the flattering vote given to me by the voters of the Twelfth District. It was the largest plurality in the history of the district. I shall devote every ounce of my energy for the best interests of Boston."

Kaiser Lectures Men for Holding Back

ROTTERDAM, Nov. 4.—One of the latest orders of the Kaiser to his army indicates his anger and disappointment at his forces for holding back. According to the Vossische Zeitung the Kaiser recently addressed his troops in the north of France. One soldier writes: "He greeted everybody with 'Good day comrades,' and we cheered in reply. Then he gave a second address and praised us for our bravery. He finished with the words 'Skin the fellows wherever you meet them.'"

I O U Saves Prince of Monaco's Chateau

PARIS, Nov. 4.—The Duke of Wertemberg has collected $25,000 of the $100,000 ransom price placed on the Prince of Monaco's chateau near Rheims. The prince's steward paid that amount to save the building from immediate destruction and signed an I O U for the $75,000 balance.

8 German Princes Killed, Says Berlin

LONDON, Nov. 4.—A Reuter dispatch says the Berlin press admits eight German princes have been killed in the war, six of them aged between eighteen and twenty.

BRITISH FOUGHT GAMELY, 2,000 GO DOWN WITH SHIPS

Servia and Turkey have declared war, according to a Reuter dispatch from Sofia received at London today.

Details of the German naval victory off the coast of Chili were obtained today from Valparaiso, from the officers of the German cruiser Scharnhorst who landed there.

The loss of the British is estimated at nearly 2,000 officers and men.

The British cruiser Monmouth, which was sunk, carried a complement of 675 officers and men, and the cruiser Good Hope, the flagship of Rear Admiral Sir Christopher Cradock, which is believed to have gone down immediately after the battle, carried 900 officers and men.

In addition the British cruiser Glasgow and the transport Otranto were struck by shells from the German ships and damaged. If, as believed, the fire stricken and shell-riddled cruiser Good Hope went to the bottom in the gale that was raging during the battle, it is certain that Sir Christopher Cradock, who was commander of the British squadron in Mexican waters, lost his life.

The German cruisers Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and the Nurenberg, which came into this harbor on Sunday night after the engagement, had steam up at dawn ready to depart. They show but little effect of the fight, and Admiral Graf von Spee, commander of the German fleet in the Pacific, reported that only two men had been wounded on the Gneisenau. There were no deaths, so far as could be gathered. At the time of the battle a hurricane was raging and no boats could be lowered to pick up survivors, the German officers said.

WAIT JAP FLEET.

Armed German transports and the cruisers Leipzig and Bremen are lying off the Takashima harbor, wherein the Glasgow took refuge. The Glasgow will probably be dismantled and interned until the end of the war, as she is no match for the German ships which are waiting to engage her if she emerges.

The destination of the German fleet is unknown, but it was reported that they would cruise off the South American coast until the Japanese fleet which is said to be on the way from the Orient arrives and her strength is ascertained.

The warships in the fleet which defeated the English were the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau, Nurenberg, Leipzig and Bremen. They won as the result of two factors—heavier ordnance and superior gunnery.

BRITISH FOUGHT GAMELY.

The weather was rainy and foggy and there was a gale blowing when the battle opened. In spite of the mist and the rolling of the ships the Germans made nearly every shot tell. The Germans opened fire at 9,000 metres, but the English reserved their fire until only 6,000 metres separated them from the German ships. Officers of the German fleet, who came ashore, caused a sensation and were greeted as heroes. They said that they believed that the eastern Pacific had now been cleared of warships.

"The British fought gamely," said these German officers,

Democrat, was elected for his first term in the Tenth.

In the Eleventh George Holden Tinkham, Republican, defeated Francis J. Horgan, Democrat. Tinkham holds the honor of being the first Republican ever to hold this district. In the Fourteenth Richard Olney, 3d, Democrat, defeated Harry C. Howard, Republican.

In the State Legislature next year the Republicans will control both House and Senate.

The referendum on the act providing for a larger City Council for Boston was overwhelmingly defeated by a majority of 28,856. Only six wards mustered up a slight preference for the big Council—Wards 2, 7, 8, 9, 11 and 12. In Ward 8, the domain of Martin M. Lomasney, who fathered the bill, the vote was 4,493 in favor to 643 against.

Among other referenda, Attleboro voted to accept a city charter, as did Revere. Westfield rejected a chance to become a city.

In the State Senate the Republicans gain about eleven, getting thirty-two this year instead of twenty-one of last year. The House of Representatives, with seven districts missing, shows the Republicans as 144, Democrats 86, Progressives 3, Socialists 1, as against last year's tally of 117 Republicans, 105 Democrats, sixteen Progressives and one Socialist.

But one member of the Executive Council this year will be Democratic—Timothy J. Buckley of Boston, last year there were two Democrats and two who had Democratic and Progressive nominations.

Guy A. Mann, Charles H. Wright, Henry C. Mulligan, Daniel D. Denny, Fred Fruthingham, David I. Parker and Herbert P. Wasgatt, all Republicans, will sit in the Governor's Council with Mr. Buckley.

Begin Inquiry on Marblehead Fire

MARBLEHEAD, Nov. 4.—Deputy Chief George Neal of the State police today began an inquiry into the cause of the fire which two weeks ago destroyed the Ocean Manor Hotel, with a loss of $60,000. The authorities think the fire was set. An inquest was held at the Central fire station, among those examined were Fred Hall, the owner of the hotel; his sisters, Gilbert B. Bartlett; fatherin-law, H. C. Bridges; Fire Chief Hathaway; local real estate and insurance agents; Patrick Brophy, chief inspector Goodrich of the wire department, Inspector Snow of the electric light station and Chief Commissioner Adams of the local fire department.

Introduce Anderson at Federal Court

Clarence Walker, United States District Attorney Joseph H. Cameron was introduced today to the officials of the Federal Court. Judge Morton presided and the introductions were made just before the resumption of the trial of John A. Fitzgerald, who is charged with bribing the late Joseph A. Perkins, special Assistant United States Attorney-general, introduced the new District Attorney to Judge Morton. Judge William Addison Pond, Assistant Attorney-general, and Judge Morton paid a tribute to Mr. French.

Oscar Underwood Wins in Alabama

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 4.—Returns show the election of Oscar Underwood as United States Senator and the entire State and Congressional Democratic ticket, including Congressman Burnett, in the Seventh district.

LEOMINSTER, Nov. 4.—Rev. Father Wilfrid Balthasard, pastor of St. Cecilia Franco Catholic Church, died here today. He was fifty years old.

Claim Suffrage Victory in Nevada

Reports coming slowly; we are winning fast; looks like a big victory and we are all extremely happy," is the message received this morning at suffrage headquarters, Boylston street, from Miss Margaret Foley at Reno, Nevada. She is expected to return to Boston next week after having converted hundreds of cowboys to the cause. Mrs. Maud Wood Park and Miss Florence Luscomb, who have been in the Ohio fight, are expected in Boston this week.

Not Due to Sex Alone

A Boston Woman's Experience.

Mrs. Alfred A. Barnes, 166 W. Brookline street, Boston, Mass., says: "I had kidney complaint and had a bad attack of backache. It was hard for me to stoop or lift anything. I had dizzy spells and felt tired all the time. My kidneys were disordered and I was very much discouraged. I had used Doan's Kidney Pills for other members of my family with good results, and when I got a box from them all symptoms of trouble soon disappeared. I cannot speak too highly of Doan's Kidney Pills."

STATE HOUSE THRONG WILDLY CHEERS WALSH

Headed by Mayor Curley and a brass band, cheering and singing patriotic songs, fifteen men, women and children made a remarkable demonstration in honor of Governor Walsh at the State House.

Mayor Curley, riding with Mrs. Curley and other guests in his limousine, halted the procession on Beacon street in front of the main entrance to the State House. Governor Walsh, who had received the returns in the executive chamber, walked down to the cheering crowd, accompanied by Lieutenant-Governor Barry, State Treasurer Mansfield, State Auditor Pope and Chairman Michael A. O'Leary of the Democratic State Committee.

Upon the appearance of the Governor, Mayor Curley arose and proposed three cheers for the "best Governor the State has ever had and ever will have." The cheering revelled that of a college gathering. The band played "Star Spangled Banner," and the crowd continued to cheer.

GOVERNOR WALSH SAID:

During the coming year I will give my best efforts to the carrying out of the plans that I have already sponsored and forwarded in behalf of the people. My heart is full of gratitude and I regret that I am unable to meet you each personally and shake you by the hand.

Governor Walsh was in the State House throughout the afternoon receiving the returns. Judge Edward L. Logan and Chairman Alfred W. Donovan of the State Board of Labor and Industries were among the friends with him.

Throughout the evening at the State House Governor Walsh was receiving congratulations of the prominent Democratic leaders and Mayor Curley remained with him until after 11 o'clock. Governor Walsh then went to the Hotel Lenox.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign or trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.—ADVERTISEMENT.

HINT MISS BURR WENT TO WAR AS LOVE DIED

Relatives of Elsie Burr, society girl and daughter of I. Tucker Burr, millionaire banker, who suddenly sailed for Europe to nurse the sick and wounded in the French army, would neither affirm nor deny today that she went away because her engagement to John Templeton Coolidge, Jr., wealthy diplomat, is broken.

Boston society, which received the news of Miss Burr's sailing with surprise, is wondering whether her romance is ended or whether she felt the call to be a Red Cross nurse was stronger than that of Cupid.

"I do not care to say anything about it," Mr. Coolidge replied today, when questioned by a reporter.

"Will you deny that the engagement is broken?" he was asked.

"I will not deny it," he answered.

Miss Burr's mother declined to discuss her daughter's announced marriage. She would not say there had been any postponement.

Coolidge failure, at his country home, "Wentworth Mansion," in Little Harbor, just outside Portsmouth, N. H., and

"It is news to me. If the engagement has been broken, the families of the young people know nothing of it. Miss Burr was fond of outdoor life, and I think the marriage has probably been delayed for that reason."

SOCIETY IS PUZZLED.

The announcement of the engagement was made some time ago, and plans for the wedding had been practically completed. Society expected it was to take place last month, and when social calendars for the invitations to be issued during November. Some dreamed of a post-ponement or of the engagement being broken. Society is convinced one of these reasons is behind the sudden sailing of Miss Burr.

Miss Burr two years took up nursing at the Boston Dispensary, working among the poor of the North End. With her engagement to Coolidge though, it was understood she was going to give up active participation in such social service. Now she may make it her life work.

RECENT DEBUTANTE.

Miss Burr, whose presentation to society took place two years ago, is the sister of Barbara Burr, and one of her brothers is Tucker Burr, Jr., who last October married Miss Edwin Thayer of Lancaster. Caroline Burr, of the Harvard Class of '15, is the younger brother.

Mr. Coolidge gained fame as a hunter in the South African Jungle and is a graduate of Harvard. His winter home is at No. 111 Beacon street.

Werner Sues Wife for Second $5,000

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Arthur M. Werner, the former mounted policeman, has filed another action against his wife, Giulia Morosini Werner, the heiress, to recover $5,000. He says this is due as a semi-annual instalment of the $10,000 a year she promised him if he would abstain from working for the city of New York as a policeman. In his first suit he seeks to recover $5,000 for an instalment due last year. His wife denies she made any such agreement.

Villa Troops on Way to Meet Carranza

EL PASO, Tex., Nov. 4.—Without answering General Carranza's refusal to accept his successor as provisional President of Mexico, the Aguascalientes conference has ordered an extensive movement of Villa troops toward the south. Fighting between Carranza and Villa forces has begun south of the convention city, it is reported.

List Pastor's Name with Women Voters

PITTSFIELD, Nov. 4.—When the Rev. Florence A. Lean, curate at St. Mark's Church, went to vote his name was not found on the list, although he had registered. Later it was found that his name was classified with the women voters of the ward. The board of registrars rectified the mistake.

JUNIORS WIN ROWING RACE AT WELLESLEY; HOLD ALL RECORDS

Carolyn Blackstone (above), captain of senior crew, and Adelaide Ross, captain of winning Junior crew.

For the third time the Junior Class crew at Wellesley College has been declared the champion eight in the institution. The Junior crew won this honor in competition on lake Waban with crews from the other classes.

As rowing for speed has caused too much nervous excitement among the contestants, the competition was for form and efficiency. Last Spring the 1916 crew broke all records for speed, and the eight now holds the record for speed, form and efficiency.

The Junior crew was led by Miss Adelaide Ross of Nyack, N. J. The other members of the crew were Mary Pfeffer, Priscilla Barrows, Miriam Wendle, Ella Wakerman, Lydia Oakley, Edith Fleming, Mary Torrence and Ethel Hazelmeyer.

The Senior crew, led by Miss Carolyn Blackstone, of Philadelphia, finished second, and lost the championship by only a few points.

MISS WHEELOCK OF BOSTON IS LAWYER'S BRIDE

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—A private letter from Italy announces the wedding there a short time ago of William G. Peckham, the New York lawyer, and Miss Marion Wheelock, a daughter of the late Francis H. Wheelock of Boston, and a grandniece of Ebenezer Wheelock, who founded Dartmouth College.

The wedding took place in Venice and was very quiet owing to the war. Mr. Peckham and his bride are due here this week, and will live in Westfield, N. J. Mr. Peckham is sixty-five and his bride is forty. His first wife was Miss Laura Thurston of Newport, R. I. He has long been prominent as a lawyer.

In the eighties, with the late Carl Schurz, he managed the independent branch of the Cleveland campaign of 1884. He represented the Northampton Bank in the famous poultry amounting to $2,000,000, and won his suits. He is a Harvard graduate and while a student there founded the Advocate. Mr. Peckham is a member of The Players', Lawyers', Harvard and National Art clubs. He spent the last Summer abroad, chiefly in France. Mrs. Peckham has lived much abroad. She studied music in Paris as well as here, under Arthur Foote, the Harvard composer.

GIRL SHOT BY SUICIDE SWAIN IS NEAR DEATH

Margaret Brock, nineteen, is crying in the Framingham Hospital today from three bullet wounds inflicted by Stanley Krystopavino, twenty-three, a rejected suitor, who killed himself in his own home when the police pursued him there.

Miss Brock and a girl chum, Helen Rachri, had just retired at their home at No. 67 Arlington street, Framingham, when the man broke in the door, and with a flashlight in one hand and a revolver in the other, picked his victim out of the darkness and fired three shots.

Within half an hour he had been cornered in his own room at No. 15 Bridges street by the police. They broke in the door and as they did so the man killed himself.

Miss Rachri said today the young man had pursued Miss Brock so persistently that the chums had moved their rooming place to the other end of town in order to avoid him. Miss Brock was one the best known women in town.

Bisbee Says Grippe Led to Fatal Error

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., Nov. 4.— Dr. D. A. Bisbee, who is under arrest charged with selling liquor containing wood alcohol, which is alleged to have resulted in the death of fourteen persons, says that when he sold the liquor he thought it was cologne spirits. Because of an attack of grippe, which affected his sense of smell, he failed to detect the difference.

OLD FASHIONED FAMILY REMEDY FOR COLDS AND BODY BUILDING

Father John's Medicine is a physician's prescription.

Prescribed for the late Rev. Father John O'Brien of Lowell, Mass., by an eminent specialist in 1855.

Father John recommended this prescription to his parishioners and friends and in this way it became known as Father John's Medicine.

This story is true and we guarantee to give $25,000.00 to any charitable institution, if shown otherwise.

Father John's Medicine is recommended for coughs, colds and throat and lung troubles, and to make flesh and strength. Does not contain alcohol or poisonous drugs.

BLAMES POOR CITIZENSHIP ON BAD TENEMENTS

Blame for the condition in the Boston City Planning Board, told the Massachusetts Federation of Progressive Women that Boston housing conditions are a crime. Some of the things he said were:

"Housing and transportation are the fundamental questions in Boston. Bad tenements make bad citizens. They can unmake in six months the work of six years' public schooling. The conditions in the North, West and South Ends preclude intelligent living.

"The average man can pay only one week's wages, perhaps under $20, for a month's rent. Tenement owners are making 18 and 20 per cent profit on providing him with quarters crowded and unsanitary. There should be a law to permit a city to condemn available land and on it to build good tenements and to rent them. Washington has such a law.

"All there are people who would be content with a 4 per cent investment, who could continue to build tenements on such a large scale as to be able to standardize the building and reduce the cost.

"For $15, $16, $20 and $22 they would offer three to five-room tenements with baths and well constructed—fireproof—without making people feel that they were living in a sanitary tinbox.

"People ought also to get out of congested centres."

Mrs. Rose A. Clark said: "Evil conditions in tenement houses explain much of the drunkenness, crime and evil, and increase the expense of maintaining hospitals, poorhouses and asylums; for the badly housed worker is a poor worker."

Minton Says Election Was Quietest Ever

"The quietest election ever, so far as polling booth troubles were concerned," asserted Chairman Minton of the election board.

GERMANS GIVE UP ATTEMPT TO REACH CHANNEL COAST

"but their ships were outclassed. The Monmouth, Good Hope and Glasgow were all set on fire by our accurate shells."

The Monmouth was commanded by Captain Frank Brandt. Captain John Luce commanded the Glasgow.

The Scharnhorst and Gneisenau are sister ships, carrying eight 8.2 inch guns in the main battery, six 6 inch guns in the secondary battery, twenty 24-pounders and four machine guns. They are heavily armored.

GERMANS NEAR ROUT AT YSER.

The most important news of land operations is an official Paris report this afternoon that the allies have retaken the village of Lombaertzyde and that the Germans hold on the left bank of the Yser only the end of a bridge between Dixmude and Nieuport. In the retreat from the Yser the Germans have abandoned war material, including some pieces of artillery that sank in the mud.

The allies, the report states, have advanced to the east of Quesnoy-en-Santerre as far as the heights of Parvillois. This indicates that the French and British troops are attempting to cut off the German forces occupying Lille. The allies are now both to the north, the south and the west of that town.

Bearing on the same operations, news comes from Belgian sources that prodigious losses were inflicted upon the Germans in Belgium by British troops on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and two German eight-inch guns were destroyed. This is an official report issued by the British Press Bureau at London today on operations in the western theatre of war.

A Reuter dispatch at London from Havre says the following official statement has been issued at Belgian headquarters: "The enemy is in retreat to the east of Yser between Nieuport and Dixmude. We have taken some prisoners. There are still some Germans on the farms around the village."

CZAR INVADES TURKEY.

Official announcement was made today by the Petrograd War Office that Russian troops had crossed the Turkish frontier and captured eight villages. Turkish troops attempted to oppose them, but retreated after suffering severe losses.

An earlier announcement from Petrograd said that the final assault upon forts at Przemysl has begun and announcement of its fall may be expected shortly. The departure of Emperor Nicholas and Minister of War Soukhomlinoff for the front is believed to have to do with the Przemysl situation.

A German aviator attempted to kill King Albert and President Poincaire at Furnes yesterday, according to a Paris dispatch, by dropping bombs from 5,000 feet while the Belgian-French cavalry were drawn up ready for their inspection in the square opposite the Hotel de Ville.

The German spy system failed in its usual accuracy in this instance, and the bomb was dropped half an hour before the President and King had arrived. The missile exploded a short distance from the square.

Three members of the Turkish cabinet, Jemal Pasha, minister of marine; Mahmoud Pasha, minister of public works, and Suleyman El Bustany Effendi, minister of mines, forests, agriculture and commerce, have resigned, says a Berlin dispatch from Constantinople.

The London Standard's Petrograd correspondent declares that Austria would gladly retire from the war if she could make peace terms with Great Britain and France.

Rumors of a fresh naval disaster are current in London, following the report that the reason for the detention of the White Star liner Olympic at Lough Swilly was that she had on board survivors of a British battleship sunk off the British coast. The sinking of the battleship has been previously reported without confirmation and without giving her name.

AUSTRIAN WARSHIP SUNK.

A Sofia dispatch to the Vossische Zeitung, a German newspaper, states that the Turkish fleet has sunk the Russian battleship Sinop.

The Sinop is a vessel of 11,250 tons. She was laid down in 1894. She was regarded as one of the weakest of the Russian battleships. Her armament consisted of six 12-inch guns, seven 3-inch guns and four 3-pounders. She carried a crew of 656 men.

Berlin officially announced today that nineteen Russian transports have been sunk by the Turks and that these vessels carried 1,700 mines intended to be used in blockading Turkish waters, thus proving that Russia's intentions were hostile. It is also announced that the Russian troops have been unsuccessful in their first fights against the Turks in Transcaucasia.

Today report is being circulated that the German fleet has come out from its base. It is also reported from Dunkirk that four battleships and four cruisers have put to sea from Kiel.

According to a Copenhagen dispatch today, a fleet of German warships is reported off the Aland Islands, in the Baltic Sea, opposite the entrance to the Gulf of Finland. It is believed that they are awaiting orders for an attack upon Russian ships or against a Russian port.

Petrograd today wires indefinitely a rumor that something of the highest importance has occurred in the Black Sea, where practically the entire Turkish navy has been reported in action with a superior Russian fleet, possibly reinforced by French and British ships.

The Franco-British fleet bombarding the Turkish forts on the Dardanelles—the gateway to Constantinople—is said to have blown up the great Holles fort by sending a shell into the powder magazine.

TWO TURKISH SHIPS SUNK.

At the Red Sea port of Akabah, east of Suez, where the Turks have been mobilizing troops for an invasion of Egypt—which is only nominally a Turkish dependency—the British cruiser Minerva has successfully shelled the fortifications.

Marines from the Minerva now hold the town.

Two Turkish vessels were sunk by the British fleet off Smyrna.

The Japanese Admiralty announced today that the Austrian cruiser Kaiserin Elizabeth had been sunk in the bay of Kiao Chau, that Fort Iltis, the principal point of defence at the Tsing Tao, had been silenced and that Governor Myer Waldron, the German commander, is reported to have been wounded.

Bulgaria's entrance into the war as an ally of Germany and Austria is foreshadowed by Berlin advices at Amsterdam, that railroad communication between the Bulgar kingdom and Servia has been broken off. Bulgarian troops are reported to be already upon the Servian frontier, ready to invade Serb territory.

WAR PERSONALS AND SIDELIGHTS

CAPTAIN SIR E. A. STEWART-RICHARDSON of the Black Watch Regiment, and husband of Lady Constance Mackenzie, the dancer, is among the wounded.

MAX O. VON KLOCK, one of Boston's most prominent Germans, says: "Turkey is not strictly an ally of Germany and Austria. Her view is that if Germany is beaten, the next attack will be against her, especially from Russia."

SIR DAVID HENDERSON, Henry F. M. Wilson, James A. L. Haldane, Henry S. Horne, Frederick D. V. Wing, Hubert De la P. Gough, Edward S. Bulfin and Aylmer Hunter Weston have been promoted Major-Generals for gallant service.

PRESIDENT POINCARÉ'S visit to the battlefield in West Flanders, where practically under fire, he and King Albert of Belgium reviewed the French and Belgian troops, has caused a wave of admiration for his bravery. Just before their visit a German airship dropped bombs on the spot.

BRINGS 15,000 CANARIES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—The Dutch steamer Oosterdyk, Santa Claus ship from the toymakers of Germany and Switzerland to the United States, reached New York with 15,000 song birds. Among the latter were 10,000 canaries.

OXFORD MEN ENLIST.

OXFORD, Eng., Nov. 4.—Oxford University opened with 1,200 undergraduates instead of about 3,000. Thirteen hundred members of the university have been recommended for commissions in the army.

APPEALS TO WILSON.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—A cable message from Robert A. Scarborough, a Unionist member of Parliament, from Chester, has been transmitted to President Wilson. It says:

"Your Excellency is appealed to on behalf of sixteen British subjects, medical patients at Bad Nauheim, who have been detained there since the outbreak of the war. They are accompanied by their women-folk. Because of recent events they are now threatened with imprisonment in a fortress."

TEA PARTY KEPT PROOFS

Ready for New York Critics Ever Since, Says Miss Head

BOSTON SAVED SAMPLES

By CONSTANCE WILLIAMS.

Talk about a tempest in a tea-pot! New York's claim that the Boston tea party was a mere minor league affair, compared to one held in her harbor at about the same time, has aroused the ire of the good citizens of our Commonwealth, and if it were not for the Boston sense of humor we might yet have a jolly row on our hands.

"As it is," declared Miss Annie S. Head, daughter of a former Governor of Massachusetts, "their claims are too absurd to be taken seriously. Really," and she smiled broadly, "it seems that they have waited rather a long time to deny our claims. Since most of these things happened about 1775, they at least have had ample time to get their proofs together. I wonder what they are!"

Miss Head is an active member of the Boston Tea Party Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, serving on its genealogical board. She comes from an old New England family that has every reason to be proud of the part it played in these very skirmishes the New Yorkers are criticising. No amount of criticism will shake Miss Head's faith in the claims of her ancestors.

"Because," and she smiled knowingly, "we have every proof that they delivered the goods away back in 1775. We need not depend absolutely on the historics if the New Yorkers are inclined to be skeptical. There are any number of families right here in Boston that have old documents and articles to substantiate any and all claims that we may make about the Boston tea party and Paul Revere's ride.

"In our chapter," she continued, "there are four women who are direct descendants of members of the tea party.

CAN SHOW SAMPLES.

"Mrs. Isadore F. B. Baxter, Mrs. Vina B. Parsons and Mrs. Emily P. Hurd are descendants of Adam Beals, and Miss Sarah H. Couch traces her ancestry back to Joseph Coolidge.

"Mrs. Isadore F. Baxter, our historian, probably knows more about Revolutionary history than all of these New Yorkers combined. She has looked into the matter thoroughly, especially the tea party side of it. She found there are three portions of the original consignment of tea still in New England.

"Major Thomas Melville, who probably foresaw, even at that early date what troubles the jealousy of a rival city might cause, brought some home in his shoes. These precious grains are still in the possession of his descendants.

"David Kennison"—and Miss Head brought this name out as if she wished some of the New York claimants to hear her—"was the last survivor of the tea party, and Mrs. Baxter found that on his death, in 1852, he left to the Chicago Historical Society a package of the tea which he himself had taken before it was all consigned to the briny deep.

"The third portion is in the possession of the Worcester Antiquarian Society. This was gathered from the wharf by Dr. Thadeus M. Harris. So you see we are not very much afraid of any claims outsiders may make. Our proofs are authentic, and we know it.

"I can only feel that New York is envious of the position Boston holds in history and is trying to discredit her. In Baltimore I have seen some more of the tea that was saved from their tea party—but did you ever hear a Baltimorean declaring that the Boston tea party was not authentic, or at best a mere flurry without any real effect? No, I think not.

NEVER HEARD COMPLAINT.

"I think Boston can feel pretty sure of her position in the matter from the attitude of the rest of the country. Every year there are thousands of tourists who go over the route traveled by Paul Revere, visit the battleground at Lexington and stand in silent admiration before the great statue of the Minute Man in Concord. They all seem inclined to believe the histories they have studied. I have never heard any complaint."

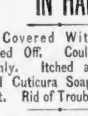
HAIR FELL OUT IN HANDFULS

Head Covered With Dandruff. Scaled Off. Could Be Seen Plainly. Itched and Burned. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Rid of Trouble.

R. F. D. No. 2, Milo, Maine.—"My hair began to fall out and my scalp itched so I could not sleep. My head was covered with dandruff and I scratched it until there were little sore places on it over my head in the form of pimples. They would itch and burn and the dandruff was so thick it scaled off and could be seen plainly in my hair. My hair fell out in handfuls when I combed or brushed it. It was awful the way it came out and I was afraid I would lose all my hair.



"The trouble had lasted about two months and I had tried a number of soaps and salves which failed to help me. Then I read about Cuticura Soap and Ointment and thought I would try them. I washed my head with Cuticura Soap and put on Cuticura Ointment on. My hair stopped falling out, the sores healed and in five weeks' treatment with Cuticura Soap and Ointment I was entirely rid of the trouble. The dandruff was gone." (Signed) Mrs. B. Hussey, Jan. 31, 1914.

Samples Free by Mail

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do much for poor complexions, red, rough hands and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little that it is almost criminal not to use them. Sold by dealers throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book on the skin and scalp. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

To Any Banking Cash. Use Peoples Credit Company in Boston
ISSUED FOR ANY AMOUNT

IT is pretty safe to judge the worth of any article or service by its success—by the number of people who use and indorse it.

The satisfaction this wonderful, businesslike credit system is giving the public is shown by the fact that today over 95,000 persons in Boston and Providence use the original order check, facsimile shown above, in purchasing goods at their favorite department and specialty stores for exactly the same prices as those who pay cash.

Every consideration is accorded customers using this check—you present it after you've made your purchase, and receive the goods immediately, or have them sent home, as you please.

No need now to wait until you have the ready money to make your necessary purchases.

No person with cash can buy goods for less money than the one using our order check.

Whether you have ever taken advantage of the credit privilege or not, we'll be glad to explain our new system to you at any time without putting you under the least obligation.

The fact that 80% of our customers never took advantage of the credit privilege before gives you some idea of how satisfactory and convenient the people of New England are finding our system.

Absolutely private offices for all customers.

Never Questioned

Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure and wholesome. It is made from highly refined, pure, cream of tartar, an ingredient of grapes. Not an atom of unwholesomeness goes into it; not an unwholesome influence comes from it. It perfectly leavens the food, makes it finer in appearance, more delicious to the taste, more healthful.

Its superiority in all the qualities that make the perfect baking powder is never questioned.

SMALL MARGIN FOR DEMOCRATS IN CONGRESS

turns indicated that "standpat" Republicans had been elected for both Governor and Senator.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon, one of the "same ducks" of 1912, goes back to Congress from Danville, Ill.

Former Representative Nicholas Longworth of Cincinnati, O., a "standpat" Republican, gets back into public life once again as a Congressman. Another of the old-time Republican figures in the House of Representatives, William B. McKinley of Champaign, Ill., is elected. For years he was chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee and was active as an old-line follower of the G. O. P. The return of Boies Penrose to the Senate from Pennsylvania was a direct slap at Colonel Roosevelt and his Progressive followers. Colonel Roosevelt went into Pennsylvania and made a series of speeches for Gifford Pinchot, the Progressive candidate for the Senate, attacking Mr. Penrose in all of them.

The Republicans made big gains in New Jersey, the home state of President Wilson. One reason for this, however, was because of the factional fight among the Democrats there. There is an echo of the tariff question in more than one of the results. For instance, James W. Wadsworth, the newly-elected Senator from New York, who succeeds Elihu Root, made his fight partly upon a high tariff and protection platform.

The reform features of the general election were hard hit. They were prohibition and woman suffrage. In Ohio, where prohibition was the real issue at stake, the "Wets" claim to have won by at least 50,000. In Colorado the prohibition issue was close and at late reports both sides were claiming victory. William Sulzer, the Prohibition candidate for Governor in New York State, ran third among four gubernatorial candidates.

The Lowest of Low Prices

This is our theme for tomorrow, Thursday. Prices will do most of the talking and they will make an interesting speech. In fact, prices are so low that we do not think there is a single instance where the price represents anywhere near the real worth of the goods to the purchaser. Prices that will irresistibly appeal to every economical woman.

U. S. SHOULD MAKE READY FOR WAR, SAYS T. R.

"Unless we prepare ourselves for service in time of war, we may as well give up football, baseball and all else, and take up tiddly-winks instead, as our national pastime," declared Colonel Roosevelt to an interviewer for the Daily News, the Yale undergraduate news organ. He added:

"I have been greatly pleased at the response of the people to my policies; especially pleased with the enthusiastic response from the students of our great universities. It is in the hands of the men graduated by these great seats of learning that the welfare and future of this republic must be entrusted.

"I have been particularly gratified by their enthusiastic support of my policy of preparedness for war, as the only real means of assuring an honorable peace. The students of our universities are beginning to realize their lack of training in military affairs. They have come to see that if we are to be prepared to meet the emergencies of war, it is absolutely essential the young men of our country must be trained for military life. These men train consistently for their football and baseball games, and other sports, yet devote no time to military training.

"It is self-evident that we want, above all else, the right government for our country. The question arises, 'How are we to obtain the right government?' That government can only be had by placing the right man at its head, the sort of man who will see to it that we are prepared for every possible attack which can be made against us. To get the right man, every voter must consider the question honestly and seriously; as judiciously and conscientiously as though he alone were to decide the issue.

S. A. King, Oldest Aeronaut, Is Dead

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4.—Samuel Archer King, who was said to be the oldest aeronaut in the world, is dead here after an illness of a week. Mr. King was in his eighty-seventh year. Death was due to a complication of diseases. Since his first ascension, which was made in 1851, Mr. King had made 4000 flights and had never a serious accident. When the Philadelphia centennial was opened in 1876 he made a flight the opening day of the centennial.

$40,000 Blaze in Brattleboro, Vt.

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Nov. 4.—Fire, which caused damage estimated at $40,000, threatened the entire business section of the city early today. The blaze started in the grain and hay sheds of the Valley Grain Company. It then spread to Mosher & Tuckerman's stables, and soon after W. J. Searles' blacksmith shop was burned to the ground. The rear of the Richardson block was damaged.

Placards to Tell of Saving Babies

Placards will be borne through the streets of Boston in the next two weeks to announce that the American Association for Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality is making ready its big convention, to be held in Boston November 12 to 14. Every one of the affiliated societies of the association is to prepare such a placard, containing information as to its work.

Best Treatment for All Complexion Ills

I'll tell you my panacea for all complexion troubles. If the skin be colorless, sallow, muddy, over-red, if it be rough, chapped, blotchy, pimply or freckled, there's nothing that will so surely overcome the condition as ordinary mercolized wax. The wax literally takes off a bad complexion—absorbs the dead and near-dead particles of surface skin, so gently, gradually, you experience no inconvenience at all. A new complexion is then in evidence, one so clear, spotless, delicately soft and beautiful, you look many years younger. One ounce of wax, procurable at any drug store, will rejuvenate even the worst complexion. It is stirred as like cold cream before retiring and removed mornings with warm water. The remarkable habit is a healthier and more economical one than the cosmetic habit.

If the skin be wrinkled or creased, bathe it daily in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This will immediately affect even the deepest wrinkles.—Kay-Dee Beauty's Mirror.—ADVERTISEMENT.

HOW TO CURE STOMACH TROUBLES

Excessive acid in the stomach, or hyperacidity, as it is called, is primarily responsible for nearly all cases of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and flatulence, and quite frequently leads to stomach ulcers. The stomach's function of peptonization as well as cure of such cases depends entirely on neutralizing the excess acid, stopping the food fermentation, and healing the inflamed mucous membrane that lines the stomach. For this purpose physicians are now advising the use of pure bisurated magnesia, which has recently been found to be unequalled in the treatment of even the severest cases. A teaspoonful in a little water immediately after eating stops all pain almost instantly, neutralizes the acid, and soothes the inflamed stomach and if regularly used will quickly remove the cause of the trouble and effect complete relief.—ADVERTISEMENT.

GOVERNOR WALSH THANKS AMERICAN

To the Editor, Boston American:

Your newspaper can share in no small measure the victory which has been achieved in Massachusetts to-day for progressive policies and humanitarian legislation. From the very begining of my administration to the closing of the polls to-day you have been a consistent and vigorous supporter of my efforts in behalf of the people of Massachusetts, and not only am I but the democratic party is greatly indebted to your forceful newspaper. Your action in this campaign is only another instance of your splendid service in championing popular and progressive measures for the welfare of the masses of the people.

SALTS IS FINE FOR KIDNEYS, QUIT MEAT

Flush the Kidneys at once when Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headache, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a burning sensation or scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Penco TRADE MARK 1869

Metal Shingles

Would you like a roofing which costs less than wood, is handsomer than slate and outlasts steel? Then Penco Metal Shingles are for you.

Penco Metal Shingles are made of the specially prepared Hampton Sheets. Hampton iron resists rust. That's why Penco Metal Shingles outlast by far any ordinary roofing.

Good looking? Handsome is the word. The iron base is coated with pure tin, then painted a slate gray. Of course you can paint them any color you like. Penco Shingles also come galvanized with a heavy coating of zinc. This makes extra protection and extra-long life.

Penco Shingles are for you—because they make your property worth more, look better, last longer and make your roof weather-, fire- and lightning-proof.

No repairs to make. You can lay them yourself.

Loxon Tile

A sheet rust-resisting roofing which has all the splendid qualities of Penco Shingles. Made of Hampton Sheets, Galvanized, in lengths of 6 to 12 feet. No nails to pull out. But one solid roof—locked on tight. Any painter can give LOXON a very attractive copper finish.

RESULT OF THE DAY'S BALLOTING IN OTHER NEW ENGLAND STATES

Connecticut Returns to G. O. P. Ranks

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 4.—Connecticut returned to the Republican fold by making a clean sweep. Frank D. Brandegee was re-elected to the United States Senate over Governor Simeon E. Baldwin by 11,752, with several towns missing.

With the vote nearly all counted indications pointed to the election of a solid Republican Congressional delegation. Among those probably elected to Congress is ex-Representative Ebenezer J. Hill, a leading member of the Ways and Means Committee.

One feature of the election was the slump in the Progressive vote. While the Progressive party polled nearly 29,000 votes last year, barely more than 5,000 voted yesterday.

Judge Marcus H. Holcomb was elected Governor by a majority of about 14,074.

The Senate and House will be Republican.

Go Armed Against Stomach Trouble

A Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet Carried In Your Purse or Pocket Will Enable You to Always Keep Your Stomach in Line

Trial Sent Free to All.

Don't let all sorts of stomach troubles, dyspepsia, gastritis, mal-nutrition, dyssentery and vertigo make life a constant torture and an ultimate failure. Men and women who are going to succeed today must have their bodies, as well as their minds, in perfect working order. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a necessity to the men and women who would always have their bodies in subjection to their wills.

"I Eat When I Will, What I Want, and Rely on Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets When Needed."

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets furnish just those elements—pepsin and other ingredients—that the normal stomach secretes for the digestion of food. One or two of these tablets will completely digest the heartiest meal without any aid from the stomach. At the same time they tone up and invigorate the enfeebled stomach so that it is soon in a healthy condition again.

Prudent men and women always have a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets on hand. They give quick relief, make digestion certain no matter what or how much is eaten. Don't think because your stomach is usually all right that you don't need them. The policeman carries revolver not because he needs it all the time, but because when he does need it, he needs it right then. When you want relief from indigestion, you want relief at once. Be armed against stomach troubles with a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. 50 cents at any drug store, or send coupon below for free trial.

REPUBLICANS SWEEP STATE OF VERMONT

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 4.—Practically complete returns from all but fourteen counties in the State show that Senator W. P. Dillingham has been re-elected to the United States Senate by a 28,695 to 22,808 vote over Charles A. Prouty, candidate on the Democratic-Progressive and Prohibition ticket. The contest between these men was the hottest political battle in many years, but the "Old Guard" rolled up a majority of 5,961.

Returns from all but Essex County give Charles W. Gates, Republican, a vote of 22,107. Harland B. Howe, Democratic, received 18,411, and G. H. Aldrich, Progressive, 3,224. The remainder of the Republican State ticket went along with Mr. Gates and won a sweeping victory.

That many deserted the Progressive and Democratic parties to swell the ranks of the Republicans is admitted by a comparison of this year's vote now available with that for Governor in 1912.

The Progressive vote of the present year was about one-third of that of 1912, and the Democratic vote scarcely more than half that of 1912.

The county not heard from is in the mountainous district, with only a few hundred voters and cannot affect the result.

In the First Congressional District Colonel Frank L. Green, Republican, won an easy victory over J. D. O'Sullivan, Democratic, by a vote of 18,293 to 6,492.

In the Second District, Porter H. Dale, Republican, went to the front with a vote of 18,028 against 3,773 the vote for John R. Reardon, Democratic, and 3,245 for Frazer Metzger, Progressive.

One thing was demonstrated beyond dispute, and that is that a fusion ticket is a failure in Vermont. In every case where a fusion county ticket was adopted it was defeated by an overwhelming majority.

Willis Beats Cox In Ohio by 30,000

COLUMBUS, Nov. 4.—Returns from less than one-fourth of the 5,000 odd precincts in Ohio indicate this morning the election of Congressman Frank B. Willis, Republican, as Governor, by 30,000 plurality over James M. Cox. Warren G. Harding, Republican, is also believed to have defeated Attorney General Hogan for United States Senator. The four proposed amendments to the State constitution, including prohibition, have probably been defeated.

Glynn Congratulates Whitman by Wire

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Governor Glynn sent this telegram to Governor-elect Charles S. Whitman: "I congratulate you on your victory."

To the reporters he said:

"I will be at the executive chamber today to transact the State business."

That was the only statement he would make on his defeat for re-election.

Walker Says 40,000 Stood by Moose

"We have made as hard a fight as we could for principles and policies," declared Joseph Walker, Progressive candidate for Governor. "Personally I have no regrets. The vote proved that 40,000 voters in Massachusetts have stood by the ticket through thick and thin. We are therefore going to fight it out to the very end, until those principles and policies are victorious."

Thacher Reaps Defeat for His Flop on Tolls

In the defeat of Congressman Thomas C. Thacher of the Cape Cod district, Democrats and Independents of Boston read a rebuke of Democratic piracy-breakers.

Thacher's defeat, according to leaders of his party in this city, was due to his vote to repeal the Panama Canal provision that no tolls be charged to American coastwise shipping.

The Baltimore platform pledged the Democratic party to keep the canal free to coastwise vessels. Boating the Stars and Stripes, Mr. Thacher was elected to Congress on that platform. At his first and only opportunity Thacher went back on his pledge and the people.

AMERICAN APPEALED.

The AMERICAN appealed to all the Democratic Congressmen from this section of the country not to go back on the Baltimore pledge. They were admonished that if the people of New England would be quick to punish such betrayal. The results speak for themselves:

Thomas C. Thacher, defeated on the Cape.

Eugene E. Reed, beaten in the First New Hampshire District.

Raymond Stevens of the Second New Hampshire, beaten by Gallinger for the United States Senate.

Former Congressman Andrew J. Peters, who voted with these gentlemen on the Tolls question, was wise enough to retire before his time was out. The administration took Peters in out of the wet and placed him in the Treasury Department.

GOT POSTOFFICE JOB.

Congressman Edward J. Gillmore of Brockton, who owed his election to the vigorous support of this newspaper, flopped on the Tolls question, against every effort to hold him in the straight and narrow path outlined at Baltimore, and then fled to the protective arms of the Wilson administration, which stowed him away from his constituents in a postoffice job.

On the other hand in the midst of a general political upheaval Congressman Michael F. Phelan of Lynn, a Democrat who stood firm against what must have been a strong temptation to follow President Wilson and share in the distribution of administration plums, is triumphantly reelected from what was meant to be a Republican district.

SPAULDING IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 4.—Complete returns from the State give the following figures on Governor and Senator:

For Governor:
Roland H. Spaulding, R. 46,200
Albert W. Noone, D. 33,849

Spaulding's plurality 12,351

For Senator:
Jacob H. Gallinger, R. 41,377
Raymond B. Stevens, D. 34,041

Gallinger's plurality 7,336

Edward Wason, Republican candidate for Stevens' seat in Congress, defeated Charles J. French, Democrat, by a close vote. Cyrus A. Sulloway, former Congressman, was re-elected to Congress in the First District over Eugen E. Reed, Democrat, who defeated Sulloway in 1912.

Indications in the license fight are that Concord would remain "wet," after a vigorous no-license campaign. Manchester also remains "wet." Franklin went for license after being dry for eight years.

Isiature.

One of the successful candidates is Colonel True Sanborn of Chichester, who was Colonel of the Fifth New Hampshire Volunteers in the Civil War, and is more than ninety years old. He was a candidate two years ago, but was beaten.

Professor Frank W. Preston of the New Hampton Institution of New Hamnton, author of the statute which prohibits the shipment of liquor from "a license town" into "a no-license town," also won. He also was defeated two years ago.

The total Progressive vote, which two years ago was 14,401, shows a loss of nearly eighty per cent.

MRS. BEECKMAN WINS IN FIGHT FOR HUSBAND

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 4.—Mrs. "Bob" Beeckman is the happiest woman today in "Little Rhody." She finds her campaign to make her husband Governor of his State successful by a majority of 7,000 in a total vote of about 70,000, according to latest returns. The husband, for whose success the loving wife worked so earnestly, is the present State Senator H. Lawrason Beeckman of the Newport millionaire colony, brook, clubman, yachtsman and, in the firm, unwavering belief of Mrs. "Bob," entitled to all the honors he can get, political and otherwise.

Mrs. Beeckman, who before her marriage to the Governor-elect in 1906 was Miss Eleanor Thomas, daughter of the late General Samuel Thomas, expressed her sentiments on her husband's candidacy in her thick of the campaign, when she said:

ATTENDS RALLIES.

"I shall attend rallies and do all I can to arouse sentiment in my husband's favor. I think all women should be interested in politics. You ask me if I would like to be the first lady of the State. Now, if you were in my place what would you say?"

The intimation was that the petted favorite of the Newport cottage colony would not mind being the wife of a Governor.

Mrs. Beeckman attended rallies and even opened the beautiful Beeckman mansion, "Land's End," on the Newport Cliff Walk, for gatherings of her husband's political supporters. She rode around with him on auto tours in the campaign and, when the returns were coming in last night, home was more delighted at the general Republican and particular Beeckman victory than "Mrs. Bob."

REPUBLICAN VICTORY.

State Senator Beeckman was elected Governor in a general Republican victory. The Republicans elected two Congressmen, Ambrose Kennedy and General Walter R. Stiness. The Democrats re-elected George P. Oshaughnessy in the First District.

The result is a Republican gain of Mayor Joseph H. Gainer in Providence was re-elected by 4,000 over Parks, the Republican-Progressive nominee. The City Council in Providence is Republican.

In Cranston, Mayor Horton defeated Ex-Mayor Edward W. Sullivan, Democrat.

The entire State is in the wet column and Westerly went for license.

MOTHER! IT'S CRUEL TO FORCE OIL OR CALOMEL INTO A SICK CHILD.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "physic" that mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing give "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow. It should be the first remedy given as it always does good, never any harm.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

FIRE ESCAPES ORDERED PUT ON FANEUIL HALL

Building Commissioner Patrick O'Hearn today ordered fire escapes put on historic Faneuil Hall, Boston's nation-famed "Cradle of Liberty."

He also ordered additional means of egress installed at the new municipal building at Broadway and H street, South Boston.

As both structures are owned by the city, the Building Commissioner showed he includes the city itself in his campaign to make all property owners observe the building laws, especially the laws relating to fire escapes and other means of egress in case of fire, panic or other elements of danger.

The thing the Commissioner objects to in Faneuil Hall is the single stairway that leads up from the Faneuil Hall landing on the second floor to the armory of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery oCmpany on the third or top floor.

The ruling against Faneuil Hall and the South Boston municipal building makes a total of nine halls or structures which the Commissioner has put under the ban until fire escapes or additional means of egress are installed. He said:

"MUST OBSERVE LAWS."

"I am going to carry it through to the limit. The city must observe the laws, as well as private property owners. There is only one narrow stairway leading down from the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company's armory in Faneuil Hall building. The means of egress on the new municipal building in South Boston are not satisfactory. There is almost sure to be a big loss of life in case of fire at a meeting in either building. It makes no difference what got by under other administrations, the law is to be observed as long as I hold office."

Until the proprietors of the places now under ban either make the necessary changes or agree to do so right away, the places cannot be used for assembly purposes.

The other places on the commissioner's list include:

Assembly hall in the Boston City Club's new $300,000 building on Somerset street and Ashburton place.

Elizabeth Peabody House hall on Charles street.

St. Francis de Sales' hall, church hall, on St. Francis de Sales street, Roxbury.

Nazareth Hall, church hall, at No. 735 East Broadway, South Boston.

Hibernian and O'Connell halls at No. 184 Dudley street, Roxbury.

Ronan Memorial Hall at Bowdoin and Coleman streets, Dorchester.

DR. CONRAD CONVINCED.

Dr. A. Z. Conrad, pastor of Park Street Church and chairman of the board of trustees of the Florence Crittenden Home, called on Commissioner O'Hearn today. The home is one of the institutions which the commissioner ordered that fire escapes be erected in a hurry. Dr. Conrad explained that he had heard considerable criticism of the commissioner and he was anxious to know what all this fire escape matter was about. The commissioner told him the safety requirements and how he was having it be law enforced. When he finished Dr. Conrad shook hands and exclaimed:

"God speed you, Mr. O'Hearn. I'm heart and soul with you in this. I didn't understand it before. I'll see that the changes you demand are made without delay."

ALMA TELL LIKES US, BUT HATED TO LEAVE "LOVELY MONTCLAIR"

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

If you have seen "Peg o' My Heart," and who has not, you will remember that cold and haughty Cousin Ethel, that stately and proud society girl who alternately snubs and spurns poor, sweet little Peg until you want to scratch her eyes out.

And if you run your eyes down the program you see that Cousin Ethel is played by Alma Tell. This is the day of "types" on the stage. If a manager needs an actor with certain characteristics he finds one with the necessary features already pinned on by nature, and all the actor has to do is go on the stage and act natural. So one may be pardoned for thinking that Alma Tell in real life must be the same kind of girl as Cousin Ethel on the stage. This time, however, you are wrong.

Miss Tell is tall, and there her resemblance to Ethel ends. She leaves all the disagreeable characteristics behind her in her dressing-room when she starts for the street, and comes out a singularly sweet and agreeable girl.

IN LOVELY MONTCLAIR.

The other day I had lunch with Miss Tell at the Thorndike. It was a very pretty party. Miss Tell wore a black toque which concealed part of her right eye, but in every other respect she didn't differ from the other girls who were being regaled at adjoining tables. Nobody would have known she was an actress. She looked more like some Hotel Wellesley girl who was getting her first introduction to broiled live.

"How long have you been on the stage?" I asked her after she had scanned the menu and ordered mackerel.

"Two years," she answered brightly. "I started in stock in Syracuse, and then joined Mr. Morosco. I played a minor part in 'Peg' in New York, and then got promoted to Cousin Ethel."

"Where is your home?"

"New York. I have lived there most of my life, but for several years we lived in Montclair, New Jersey. It is lovely in Montclair."

"Can it be possible?"

"Oh, yes, honest. I hated to leave. I have a sister, Olive Tell, who is also on the stage. She came over to see us last week. You know mother is here with me. We have the loveliest little boarding place on Newbury street."

"How is your dog?"

TO VISIT NEW YORK.

"The Pomeranian? Splendid. That reminds me, you said in the AMERICAN that her name was Rover or Henry. She couldn't have that kind of a name. Her name is Fluff."

"Well, you might call her Rover for short."

"Miss Tell almost choked on a mackerel bone. "I think we had better change the subject," she suggested.

"All right. How do you like Boston?"

"Very much. It's such a comfortable place. I am having a charming time here. I am going to New York, though, Saturday night, and not coming back until Monday afternoon. I love New York."

"Friends over there?"

"Lots!"

"Particular friends?"

"Uh, huh."

"One special friend?"

"It's time I went to meet mother," replied Miss Tell.

Alma Tell, who plays Cousin Ethel in "Peg O' My Heart."

BIG INTEREST IN EXHIBITION AT GILCHRIST'S

That Boston people are commencing to realize more than ever the superiority of New England made goods was demonstrated today by the tremendous amount of interest taken in the "Home Industry" exhibit at Gilchrist's.

Thousands of men, women and children visited the various booths and piled the aisles to the limit. Practically every industry in New England is represented. There are demonstrations of the manufacture of hair mattresses, lace curtains, rugs, blanket flannel, underwear, shoes, millinery, buttons, skirts and switches.

Each exhibit has a booth of its own. The display is a small textile exposition in itself. It impresses the visitor with the immense comercial resources of New England and gives him a keener insight into the wonderful efficiency of local manufacturers.

Several business men from other parts of the United States and a few from abroad have taken advantage of the exhibit to investigate the methods of New England manufacturers, and many of them have been deeply impressed by the workmanship and quality of the finished products turned out before their eyes.

The exhibit is expected to show a big increase in the sale of New England made goods, and is part of a plan to bring more big business and prosperity to Boston through the joint co-operation of local manufacturers and dealers.

HOW TO HEAL SKIN TROUBLES

A Baltimore doctor suggests this simple, but reliable and inexpensive, home treatment for those suffering with eczema, ringworm, rashes, and similar itching skin troubles.

At any reliable druggist's get a jar of resinol ointment and a cake of resinol soap. These will not cost a bit more than seventy-five cents. With the resinol soap and warm water bathe the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the resinol ointment, and cover with a light bandage—if necessary to protect the clothing. This should be done twice a day. Usually the distressing itching and burning stops with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again. For free samples of resinol ointment and resinol soap, write Dept. 34R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

CHICAGO HURTS ARE FATAL TO F. E. BRADBURY

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Frank E. Bradbury of Boston, vice-president of the International Mercantile and Bond Company, died this morning at St. Luke's Hospital of injuries received yesterday when he was knocked down by a team of horses in the down-town business section.

While attempting to cross Wabash avenue at Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, he was struck by a pair of horses. The force of the impact threw him against a south-bound Indiana street car. He was run over.

Dr. Arthur B. Eustace, who witnessed the accident from his automobile, took Bradbury to St. Luke's Hospital.

When the accident occurred Mr. Bradbury was on his way to the Chicago office of the International Mercantile and Bond Company in the Marquette Building to have a conference with S. L. Bright of San Francisco, president of the concern. Mr. Bradbury was counsel of the corporation.

Mr. Bradbury's home is in Dedham.

ROCKEFELLER MUST PLEAD IN PERSON IF ABLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—William Rockefeller, indicted with twenty other directors or former directors of the New Haven Railroad by the Federal Grand Jury, will be arraigned in the United States District Court tomorrow to plead to the charge of conspiracy. It had not yet been determined whether Mr. Rockefeller will appear in person or by counsel. If he is physically able to be present, however, Mr. Rockefeller's presence will be required.

The understanding is that the same rule will be asked for Mr. Rockefeller as was demanded in the case of George F. Baker, Lewis Cass Ledyard and Charles M. Pratt.

The same ball will also be asked for seven or eight more of the indicted who are expected to be arraigned in court today. These defendants will be from Connecticut and other New England States.

No further step was taken in the cases yesterday, but it is expected counsel for the defendants will begin work today on the demurrers that will be filed to keep the distinguished financiers and magnates out of jail. A long and bitter legal fight is expected.

Dispatches from Washington say the department of justice has prepared a vigorous prosecution and if convictions are secured jail sentences will be insisted upon. It is agreed the cases against the defendants are as well prepared as could be imagined under the criminal clause of the Sherman law. If convictions are had and only fines are imposed it will be regarded as hopeless to secure jail sentences under that clause.

It is understood former President Mellen will be the chief witness for the prosecution. The connection link in the conspiracy will, of course, be the committees which passed upon the various mergers and leases and other acts complained of before the approval of the whole board of directors was requested.

CHILIAN SEES GREAT CHANCE FOR BOSTON

Boston has a special commercial opportunity in South America, according to Senor Antonio Rafael Velar of Chili, who has just arrived in Boston and will remain here to push the business interests of South Americans.

South Americans need cotton goods, oils, electric and plumbing appliances, New England-made shoes and other materials, he declared. He added:

"Today just come to Boston, because I feel there is a special opportunity here in New England for business with South American countries.

"The European war has cut off our trading much with Germany, France and Belgium. We need cotton goods. We will buy all you send to us. Since I have been here I have heard that some of your mills are running on short time. To me this seems unnecessary. There is no greater opportunity for Boston to do a rushing business with South American countries than now. This chance will not come again in a century."

"We like American made shoes, because they are more durable than the shoes coming to us from France. American shoes costing five dollars will cost from $15 to $20 down there.

"But the man who is to sell these goods must come down to live with us. We want to know him socially."

GAS! GAS! INDIGESTION, SOURNESS, SICK STOMACH—PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN.

Here's relief! In five minutes your upset stomach feels fine.

If you feel bloated after eating and you believe it is the food which fills you; if what little you eat lies like a lump of lead on your stomach; if there is difficulty in breathing after eating, eructations of sour, undigested food and acid, heartburn, brash or a belching of gas, you need Pape's Diapepsin to stop food fermentation and indigestion.

It neutralizes excessive acid, stomach poison; absorbs that miserymaking gas and stops fermentation which sours your entire meal and causes Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Biliousness, Constipation, Dizziness, etc. Your real and only trouble is that which you eat does not digest, but quickly ferments and sours, producing almost any unhealthy condition.

A case of Pape's Diapepsin will cost fifty cents at any pharmacy here, and will convince any stomach sufferer in five minutes that Fermentation and Sour Stomach is causing the misery of Indigestion. No matter if you are all your trouble Catarrh of the Stomach, Nervousness or Gastritis, or by any other name—always remember that relief is waiting at any drug store the moment you decide to begin its use.

Pape's Diapepsin will regulate any out-of-order stomach within five minutes, and digest promptly without any fuss or discomfort, all of any kind of food you eat.—ADVERTISEMENT.

R. F. Herrick, Jr., Ordered to Jail on Auto Charge

In Cambridge Court today, Robert F. Herrick, Jr., of Chestnut Hill Farms, Milton, a young millionaire, was sentenced to two weeks in the House of Correction for driving an automobile while intoxicated.

Two or three weeks ago Herrick and several other Harvard students "borrowed" the automobile of Walker, son of Joseph Walker of Brookline. An alarm was sent out and they were captured.

In court the next day the other cases were dismissed or filed, but Herrick pleaded guilty to intoxication. Harry Sterns, former Senator, was seated him in court and asked a postponement, as he said the Harvard authorities were investigating the affair, and he hoped to be able to clear the case up in a few days.

Today the case came up for trial. Mr. Stearns told the court that young Herrick had been punished by the college authorities for the remainder of the year, and asked leniency for the boy. But Judge Almy gave him two weeks, and an appeal he was held in $200.

We know the Germans and French as well as English in this way.

"We want American fashions also. If Boston can establish a good fashion we will not go to Paris for ours. Paris will be a back number as well as Germany after this war is over.

"I am going to open a consulting office in the Oliver Building in this city and will answer all questions about the business interests of my own country, as well as those of other South American republics. But what I want Boston to do, is to take its magnificent opportunity now."

TIGER SQUAD PRACTICES WITH HARVARD PLAYS AGAINST SCRUB TEAMS

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

SPRINT ORDER MAY FORCE BIKERS IN LONG GRIND AT ARENA TO SMASH TIE

CHARLEY WHITE HAS CHANCE TO DEFEAT WELSH

By RINGSIDE.

CHARLEY WHITE will be the next lightweight to try and halt the onward rush of Freddy Welsh. The Chicago boxer will clash with the world's champion in Milwaukee on November 8 and a sensational battle is expected.

Welsh has engaged in two fights since he lifted the well known championship from Willie Ritchie's noble brow. He defeated Matty Baldwin at the Atlas A. A., while he conquered Ad Wolgast in dear old New York the other night.

Baldwin and Wolgast are classed among the world's leading lightweights and Welsh came in for considerable criticism when he agreed to exchange broadsides with these men before his tussle with White. Many prominent experts asserted that he might be beaten by either Baldwin or Wolgast, while he also took a big chance of getting injured or badly battered up.

Welsh, however, refused to call off either of these bouts. He is confident in his own ability, and when in Boston stated that he was going to meet all-comers and prove to the American public that he is a real champion.

The title holder has been successful so far, but he will probably receive more opposition from White than he did from either Baldwin or Wolgast. Baldwin gave a fine account of himself against the Welsh man, but he is not able to punch as hard as White.

WHITE'S real name is Charles Anchewitz. He was born in Liverpool, England on March 23, 1891, which makes him twenty-three years of age. He came to this country when he was a boy and received his early ring training in the Middle West. White says that he owes his present position in his favorite sport to the fairness of the American public. He asserts that he is an American of the true type and that he will bring the championship back to the United States.

The Chicago boxer claims that Welsh was lucky to win the title. He does not mean to infer that Welsh did not outpoint Willie Ritchie to their tussle in London, but declares that he would not be the honorable thing if the 133-lb. bout should leave decisions were permitted to be rendered in Milwaukee.

IF will be remembered that White and Welsh battled fought in Milwaukee shortly before the Welsh boy sailed for London to battle Welsh. White had the best of that contest and came very near landing a dream smash in the opening session.

Which, of course, cannot win the championship from Welsh unless he stops him, as the latter has won decisions in Milwaukee. But if he beats the champion on points, the latter will be forced to meet him a return match where a twenty-round bout can be held and a referee's decision rendered.

FRED YELLE, Taunton's esteemed box fighter, has again pitched his tent on the trail of New England's big men in the lightweight division—Matty Baldwin, Gilbert Gallant and Eddie Murphy. He intends to keep hurling challenges at the members of this trio until one of them consents to clash with him. He believes that if he can secure a tussle with Baldwin, Gallant or Murphy that his future will be assured. He is confident that he would win such a bout, which event he would cash in a position to force the other two men to meet him.

JOHNNY "YOUNG" LUSTIG, New York's clever little lightweight, who defeated Baldwin, Murphy, Johnny Dundee and "Kayo" Brown such hard battles, was Yelle's latest victim. He won from him after twelve interesting rounds of boxing before the Oakland A. C. in Webster. Lustig was crowded with action and Yelle had a shade in his favor when the contest ended. The Taunton boy would prefer to get a tussle with Baldwin says that he is willing to exchange punches with Matty at any terms which the latter may name.

JACK READ, the Australian lightweight champion, will probably be seen in action in Lawrence again within a few weeks. He fought Joe Alger in that city recently and made a big hit by his fine all-around work within the hemp ropes. Read is a quiet, likeable youth and usually gives satisfaction. The Australian is not much of a puncher but there are few of the local lightweights who are as well versed in the fine points of the glove game.

NOAH BRUSSO, the hard hitting Attleboro boxer, is preparing for a strenuous campaign this Winter. Brusso recently returned from England, where he made a good record. The Attleboro boy informs us that he is out to prove that he is the best middleweight in these parts. He fired his opening shot by defeating the middleweight championship of New England and says that he is ready to defend his laurels against all comers. The will probably make interesting reading for Bill McKinnon, Roxbury's best bet in the boxing game; Joe Chick, "Wild Bill" Flemming and several other young Dusties who bashfully admit that they are unbeatable.

JOE JEANNETTE has been made a favorite in the early betting for his twelve-round bout with Battling Jim Johnson, which will be staged before the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. The wise men figure that Jeanette's shanny left fab and knowledge of "inside" boxing will enable him to grab off the decision.

Chicago Will Name Field After Stagg

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—In recognition of the work of A. A. Stagg, veteran director of athletics, the University of Chicago has announced that its athletic field has been officially named "Stagg Field." Stagg became director of the university when it was founded in 1892.

YALE VARSITY HAS HARD TASK WITH SCRUBS

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 4.—Both in offensive and defensive football the Yale eleven was driven hard in its opening scrimmage work of the week.

Although the regular ploughed through the scrubs for two touchdowns, they were twice held, once relinquishing the ball on downs and the second time punting on third down.

Knowles and Waite made the touchdowns. On the defense the varsity succeeded in preventing the scrubs from penetrating to their goal line, but could not divert ground losses in repeated scrub experiments with the forward pass. The second team gained only forty yards before it was finally halted.

Twenty minutes of brisk football of the Hinkey model kept both elevens on tiptoe, and little Waite, who started the practice ahead of Ames, worth at left halfback, awoke the scrubs by slipping through their entire team after kicking the kick-off at the varsity 10-yard line.

The scrub defense broke up three line attacks and Guernsey punted behind the scrub goal on fourth down.

For the scrubs Wiser slipped around right end for twenty gains and short gains and took the ball to midfield, where the varsity was again held and compelled to lose the ball on downs five yards from the scrub goal.

Tommy Cornell, who replaced Waite, ran Wiser's kick back fifteen yards, and on the next play smashed through the scrub tackle to the 3-yard line, where Knowles took the ball over.

From their 20-yard line the scrubs, using the forward pass, advanced to the varsity 35-yard line, gaining fairly yards on a clever heave directly over the centre of the line.

On fourth down Wiser's try for a field goal failed. Here the varsity showed its prettiest line attack and on five runs just outside tackle, scored.

Dundee Looking for More Fights

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Johnny Dundee, the New York Italian lightweight, who gave former Lightweight Champion Willie Ritchie the hottest kind of an argument for a four-round tilt at San Francisco a week ago, is in town looking for a fight in this section of the woods. According to his manager, "Scotty" Montieth, he does not care who the promoters send against him.

While nearly everybody was pulling for Champion Freddie Welsh to emerge from his bout with Al Wolgast at New York without damage, Dundee says that he is one that champion bunged up so that it would give him the chance to jump in as a substitute against White at Milwaukee on November 8. If he can't be matched with White, his second choice is Joe Mandot.

Arlington Leader Out of Big Run

Arlington High School's championship cross-country team will be entered Saturday in the New England interscholastic cross-country run at Worcester Academy. Because of low marks in his studies, Clinton Peabody, who was the first of the Arlington runners to cross the tape at Cornell, will not be eligible.

CHASING THE PIGSKIN

IF Harvard defeats Princeton next Saturday she will defeat Yale two weeks later. And if the Crimson loses to Princeton, she will also lose to Yale on November 21.

Such, at least, is the "dope," said "dope" is compiled from the records of the three teams in their inter-university matches since 1885, when the modern style of scoring went into effect. There have been changes in the scoring system since 1885, but only to change the value of a touch down or a goal from a touchdown, field goal or goal from placement.

Before 1883 a team would win by "1 goal and 2 touchdowns to 1 touchdown," or some such score.

GETTING back to the Harvard-Yale-Princeton triangle, it will be found from the following table of scores, that if Harvard lost to Princeton she also lost to Yale, and that in most cases, she also defeated Princeton she also defeated Yale.

IT will be seen that in 1887, although Harvard defeated Princeton decisively she was in turn beaten by Yale, 17 to 8.

The Yale game was played on the old Polo Grounds at 110th street and Seventh avenue, New York. A wave of enthusiasm swept through the Harvard camp when the team defeated the Tigers on Jarvis Field that year, and it was confidently expected that the Crimson would triumph over the Blue.

Allie Porter and Bert Holden were the Harvard halfbacks, and a better pair of backs never wore cleated shoes. If we are not mistaken, Wyllis Terry and Edwards were the Yale backs. It was a bitterly fought game, and Yale triumphed.

Those were the days of football rowe. Harvard didn't like the way Yale played, and she was not satisfied with the way the officials handled things, so she refused to meet Yale the following year.

RELATIONS were resumed in 1889, when the first of the games at Springfield was played. For six years the two teams met on the old Hampden Park gridiron, and who will ever forget those battles? And then came another row. This time Harvard Hinkey of rough stuff, and diplomatic relations were severed for a period of two years.

In the meantime Harvard and Princeton matched up their differences of 1889, and in 1893 and 1895 two games were played—the first at Princeton and the second at Soldiers Field. In 1897 Yale and Harvard "made up," and since then they have had their annual game.

IT is worthy of note that while Harvard and Princeton have had their differences, and Harvard and Yale have agreed to disagree, the football relations of Yale and Princeton have not been interrupted since 1876—thirty-eight years.

WHAT a flood of memories a glance at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton scores brings up! If we started to write more about them we never would stop.

Bill James Joins the No-Hit, No-Run List of Pitchers

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4—Bill James, the Braves' star twirler, got into the famous pitchers' class by pitching a no-hit game for the All-National team in a game here against the All-Americans.

Joe Bush of the Athletics opposed James and was touched up for ten hits. The score was 4 to 2, the American Leaguers getting runs over in the second while the All-Nationals won with the four runs.

Johnson to Pitch Game on Birthday

HUMBOLDT, Kan., Nov. 4.—Elaborate preparations for the entertainment of a big crowd is being made here for a game on Friday, when Walter Johnson of the Washington club will celebrate his birthday by pitching for the Humboldt Grays against a team from Chanute. The baseball fans in the section are planning a big reception for the famous pitcher.

CITY LEAGUE BOWLERS MEET IN BIG MATCHES

EVERY match in the City Bowling League tonight will be a feature in itself. There's only a matter of eight points between the six teams, and while some of them have a pinfall advantage on the others, the matches are so divided as to make them appear the best set of the season.

Boylston is still within hailing distance of the Chauney leaders, and there is a slight possibility of it climbing into the lead this evening. The possibility hinges on Boylston taking the Casino team makes against Chauncy. Harry Paine's team smothered the pins last week, rolling well over the 1,500 mark, but was unfortunate to be stacked against Carruth, which was rolling records at the same time.

Whether the Casino team can put up the game exhibition on the Chauncy lanes is another question. Other teams have found the pins hard to master on Bill Beatty's alleys.

MURRAY will send a reorganized team to Boylston. Captain Sammy Green has severed his connections with the quintet for personal reasons, and "Bo" Hartford has been appointed to the captaincy in his stead. Hartford promises to send a stronger lineup than ever against Jack Meade's boys.

CARRUTH, holder of both team records for the season, will endeavor to keep up its good work at the Adams Square alleys tonight. It was on these lanes two weeks ago that the Adams Square team sent down the Chauncy leaders in three points. Felton's men are particularly strong at home and are apt to spring another surprise on Carruth.

NEWTOWNE will be put through a real test in the Newton Bethpin League series this evening when it will be pitted against Maugus at the latter's alleys. Maugus has the best pinfall, and holds all the league records for the season, yet it has been able only to get an even break in points. Maugus is the leader in winning four points. Newtowne can tie Maugus for first place.

UNUSUAL interest is being displayed in tonight's meeting of the K. of C. League. Benedict, Arlington First and Pere Marquette will open a battle tied for first place. Santa Maria is only one point behind. Pere Marquette and Santa Marie will stage the feature match.

EDWARD F. MURRAY, manager of the Murray & Irwin alleys, has inaugurated the weekly rolloff. It will be held every Thursday evening. There has been a splendid showing of interest thus far. Forty bowlers are seeking the twelve qualifying places and twenty-five of that number have hit the pins for .200 or better in the melee. Shea holding Brown's place on right end. Brown has not been getting under forward passes well and it is thought that Shea may work out better in this department.

THE Tottenham Old Boys' Bowling Club, which is very strict on the foul line rules, desires matches at the Egleston Square alleys, Jamaica Plain, with any amateur team, having an average of 1,250 total pinfall, on any Friday evening during the season. John Bryett, captain, No. 58 Chestnut avenue, Jamaica Plain, will receive all challenges.

THE Terminal League, composed of N. Y., N. H. & H. freight clerks, are running off a twenty-five weeks' schedule. Matches are held at the Summer Street alleys every every Thursday evening.

TIGERS USING HARVARD PLAYS FOR PRACTICE

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 4. — The Tigers are working hard for their game with Harvard on Saturday.

Catching punts with the sun in the eyes of the receiver, and a considerable portion of the scrimmage is being devoted to the defence against the Crimson formations.

No score was kept in the mix-up for the scrub team had the leather for twenty minutes at the start and they used the Harvard plays.

Some of them were successful and netted good distances, but toward the latter part the regulars commenced to solve them.

Three times the "Harvard team" fumbled in the varsity territory and a Princeton man recovered the pigskin on each occasion, but it was returned to "Harvard" in order that the defence might become accustomed to the plays.

Dickerman was at Glick's place at halfback and he did much to retrieve his poor showing of Saturday. He made some long gains and paved the way for the touchdown by Ames.

There was one change noticeable in the lineup in the melee, Shea holding Brown's place on right end. Brown has not been getting under forward passes well and it is thought that Shea may work out better in this department.

Eddie Hart had his turn at driving the players and while he did not get the full varsity lineup he put the men through a hard workout.

McLean was at tackle and while he is green he appeared to be the logical choice for the position. Bigler is recovering rapidly from the attack of poison and Trainer Fitzpatrick reports that he will be out soon.

Little Leaf

LITTLE LEAF leaned o'er the Lake,
Eyes full of scorning
Quoth the Leaf to Mother Tree.
"I am sick as sick can be
Of this robe you gave to me
For my adorning;
I would fain be better dressed,
And not look like all the rest."

"Little Leaf," cried Mother Tree,
(Heart full of sorrow),
"You are all too young and fair
For such worldly things to care:
And my child, beware, beware.
Frost comes tomorrow;
Hide your face against my heart,
Let me shield you from his dart."

Little Leaf tossed up her head.
Mother Love grieving.
Frost came by and boldly said,
"I will give you robes of red;
After that we will be wed."
Vain Leaf, believing.
Kissed him for a scarlet gown.
In the dust he cast her down.

Their Married Life

Helen Finds That Nora Is Thinking of Getting a Husband and Is Greatly Amazed

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service

"DO you mean to say you haven't asked her about it? Why I am sure she must have planned it with Lizzie."

"But what makes you think so, Mrs. Stevens?" Helen asked the question as calmly as she could, because she knew by experience that Mrs. Stevens was very apt to exaggerate.

"Well, I haven't a real reason, but you know they spent the Summer together, and they are great friends. I thought you told me once that Nora did not know any people in Boston."

"That's true; she has never boltered with anyone."

"Well, then, don't you see that it's likely to be so? Perhaps Nora is afraid to tell you, but I am sure they have it all planned."

Mrs. Stevens had come over early in the afternoon to see Helen about Nora. Helen could not believe that Nora would do anything underhanded, but Mrs. Stevens seemed to have ample proof of the fact that Nora was planning to go to Ireland with Lizzie.

"Why does Lizzie want to go just now?" I should think the war would frighten her out of it."

"It did for a time, but she has had her mind made up for over a year now, and the sister of one of her friends went home just the other day. You see, she has saved up a little money since she has been with us, and she wants to go back home to see her people before marrying and settling down over here."

"Is she engaged?"

"Yes, and has been for two years now."

"Well, I can be sure of Nora on that score, anyway," said Helen with a relieved little laugh. "She has no male attachments that I know of."

"Oh, hasn't she, though. Well, there have been two men in our kitchen plenty of time when she has been over visiting Lizzie, so I wouldn't be too sure of that if I were you."

HELEN FINDS CAUSE FOR AMAZEMENT

Helen looked at Mrs. Stevens with amazed eyes. "You don't really mean it? Why should Nora have men come to see her over there, when she knows perfectly well that I would be willing for her to have them here any time?"

"As I said before, she probably doesn't want you to know."

"But she might know that you would tell me."

"Not necessarily. We don't gossip so much, you and I. But I must say that I would do almost anything rather than lose Lizzie. You see I always regarded this trip to Ireland as entirely theoretical, and here I am confronted with it."

Helen was thinking rapidly. She could hardly manage to get along without Nora. Just a year ago she had almost lost her, but ever since Nora had come back she had been better than ever, and Helen had been very kind to her. Nora had very good principles and she was genuinely fond of Helen and devoted to Winifred. Then, too, she was a good girl. She knew how to wait very well, she knew all Helen's likes and dislikes, and Warren's tastes almost better than Helen did herself. She simply couldn't lose Nora.

"Lizzie has never said anything about Nora's going with her?" she questioned.

"No," very slowly, "I will admit that this is merely an idea of mine, but I am pretty sure you will find that I am right. Well, I must run along home now; don't worry about it. I thought you ought to know, that's all, and I am sure you would rather have me tell you."

"Yes, indeed, if anything like that is going to happen, of course I ought to know. I'll find out from Nora immediately, and thank you for coming over."

Helen went slowly out into the kitchen after the door had closed on Mrs. Stevens. She hardly knew just how to ask Nora about it, for fear of putting the idea into her head in case it weren't there. Mrs. Stevens was so apt to jump at conclusions. Nora was sitting at the kitchen table cutting up carrots for dinner. The kitchen was scrupulously clean and Nora herself looked as neat and sweet as could be. Helen noticed for the first time how attractive the girl was, with her fresh coloring and her bright expansive smile. Why shouldn't Nora be attractive to men? It just hadn't occurred to her before, that was all.

Nora looked up with a smile and Helen took the plunge bravely.

"Mrs. Stevens has just been here, Nora. She tells me that Lizzie has made up her mind to go to Ireland!"

NORA IMPARTS A SECRET WITH A FLUSHED FACE

"Yes, Mrs. Curtis," said Nora, still cutting up carrots into the big yellow bowl, "but then you know she told Mrs. Stevens about it over a year ago."

"Mrs. Stevens seems terribly upset about it, anyway," said Helen. "Don't you think it's dangerous, Nora, now that the war is on? I can't imagine why Lizzie doesn't wait until later."

"Lots of girls are going over now, ma'am, and Lizzie's friend won't wait forever for her."

"So Lizzie has a friend," said Helen in a surprised tone of voice. "I suppose she'll be married when she comes back."

"Yes, ma'am," agreed Nora. Saimly.

Helen hesitated a moment.

"Nora, you have no idea of going back to Ireland with Lizzie, have you?" she said finally. "Mrs. Stevens seemed to think you were going, too."

Nora looked up. "Why, no, ma'am, I'm not going back at all. Lizzie did want me to, but—" Nora stopped and flushed a brilliant red up to her ears.

"Can't you tell me, Nora?" said Helen, encouragingly.

"Well, you see, ma'am, I didn't want to spend the money. I want it for something else."

Helen's heart gave a jump; she could guess what was coming.

"Why, what do you mean, Nora?"

Nora looked up at Helen in a little frightened way that she had.

"Don't be afraid to tell me."

"No, ma'am, I won't, but I didn't mean to tell you just yet."

"Nora, you don't mean that you are going to be married?"

Nora nodded blushingly. "Some time, but not yet, ma'am," she stammered out. "Not for another year."

"But, Nora, who is this man; he has never come to see you here?"

"No, ma'am, he saw him over at Lizzie's. I didn't want you to know, for fear you wouldn't like it."

Nora's honest eyes were filling with tears.

"But, Nora, I would have to know it some time, and as long as you are not going to leave me yet," and Helen drew a breath of relief, "why it isn't quite as bad as it might be."

Nora smiled through her tears and Helen patted her shoulder comfortingly.

"But you must have him come here, Nora; don't go over to Lizzie's; that isn't right. Besides, I shall want to see what he looks like, you know."

"Yes, ma'am," said Nora, blushing again, "he taked me to moving pictures. He's fine, ma'am; he's a friend of Lizzie's friend."

Helen smiled. "Well, that ought to be recommendation, I suppose. But, Nora, what am I going to do without you?"

"I'll have no little sister come over, ma'am, by the time I leave, and I will show her how so that you won't know it's me that's left."

Nora's round Irish face was beaming with good will, and she rose and caught Helen's hand impulsively.

"You've been awful good to me, ma'am; I don't like to leave. It's Joe, you see."

Helen saw, and she laughed again. "Well, Nora, things might be a great deal worse, and as long as your sister is coming over and will take your place, I feel quite relieved. I'm sure I don't know what Mr. Curtis will say."

"It ain't for a year yet, ma'am. I'll always do my best for you, Mrs. Curtis, and so will Maggie."

Nora went back to her work and Helen walked on out into the living room. After all she couldn't expect to keep Nora always, and there were plenty of women in Boston not half so fortunate as she would be with a maid to step right into the position that Nora would leave. Things might have been a great deal worse.

How to Get Rid of a Bad Cough

A Home-Made Remedy that Will Do It Quickly. Cheap and Easily Made

If you have a bad cough or chest cold which refuses to yield to ordinary remedies, get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking a teaspoonful every hour or two. In 24 hours your cough will be conquered or very nearly so. Even whooping cough is greatly relieved in this way.

The above mixture makes a full pint—a family supply—of the finest cough syrup that money could buy—at a cost of only 54 cents. Easily prepared in 5 minutes. Full directions with Pinex.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup preparation takes right hold of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough in a way that is really remarkable. Also quickly heals the inflamed membranes which accompany a painful cough, and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. Excellent for bronchitis, spasmodic croup and winter coughs. Keeps perfectly, and tastes good—children like it.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex"—do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

HER HUSBAND'S WIDOW

A Thrilling Story of Romance, Adventure and Intrigue, in Which a Beautiful Young Bride Plays the Part of the Heroine

O'SHEA made a quick movement to kiss her, but, laughing, she ducked, and his mustache merely brushed the perfume of her hair.

Victor deliberately stumbled against a table, and so announced his approach. The pair looked up at him with absolute composure.

"Come and sit by me, Vicky," cried Mrs. Melas, scattering her many rings on her slim ankles and making a place for him on the pile of cushions on which she was seated. With a weary expression he sat down beside her.

"We are here, Mr. Varney, and if you get out of playing bridge," she explained, "Mrs. Varney and that vile baboune old prince completely cleaned us out this morning."

The intruder was malicious enough to hope this was true, also to envy the other man's obvious annoyance at his appearance.

"I hope you have your railway tickets home, he said. "Otherwise you had better go to Marseilles to get to Monte Carlo and try to raise the wind there."

"Oh, but you would lend me my fare, wouldn't you, Vickums?" the lady reproved him archly. "You don't know," she said, turning to the rest, "that Captain Steele was the first man I ever loved."

"Well, I hope he won't be the last," chuckled Varney, twirling his mustache.

"You hear that, Vicktishus?" Mrs. Melas turned toward her old friend —"Forlorn widow though I am, someone still thinks the heart you spurn worth winning."

In guttural Arabic Victor requested the lady not to make herself a fool, but before she had framed what would probably have been an even less polite reply to the same tune, a shadow fell across them. They looked up. Leslie was balancing herself backward against the rail, accompanied by the severest admiration. Her gaze ignored the man altogether.

"I borrowed your husband for half an hour, Leslie," said Mrs. Melas (Victor noticed her use of the Christian name). "But I'll do anything on this old ship. He flirts quite well, you know. That explains how he got you to marry him. Oh, of course, you may have taught him."

"It is very good of you to look after him—Jenny," Leslie brought out the name with a slight effort. She had evidently been particularly requested to use it.

SMILE FREEZES ON LESLIE'S LIPS

The conversation struck Victor as fatuous in the extreme. He pointed to a faint gray smudge on the eastern horizon. "That's the island of Ischia over there," he said irrelevantly.

Mrs. Melas patted his hand. "Poor old Vicky," she said naughtily, "he doesn't like this kind of talk at all. He's very serious indeed, you know, Leslie. You see, I know his heart ever so many years ago and so gave me to understand that I was the only one able to smile once. Do you think you could do anything for him?"

Leslie looked at her with a thin smile. She glanced from her to Jenny with her mock-earnest expression of sympathy to the dismal face and plaints.

Victor Steele, biting his lips furiously, as the words echoed on the deck, saw only her white shoes and ankles disappearing round the hatchway.

* * *

Dancing had already begun. Leslie passed them, her waist encircled by the arm of the subaltern, whose adoring expression did not escape Victor. His eyes followed her a little wistfully. She made a momentary failure to identify Jenny. Oswald came running up.

"I've been hunting for you everywhere, Mrs. Melas," he began breathlessly. "I want you for this dance with you. Where's your program?"

Mrs. Melas turned coldly from him to Victor. "You have my program."

Victor handed the card to the other, who scanned it eagerly. His face contracted into a frown. Across every number the initials V. Varney sprawled.

"Oh, I say!" he said, with a nervous bow to Victor. "He wouldn't dance, you, Steele." He walked away.

Mrs. Melas burst out laughing. "I don't look wild! He's gone off as we used to say. Fancy his Miss ever so much prettier than Mrs. Varney, she flutched a Vicky's arm affectionately.

"Tell me, tell me where he had carried her with oswald that afternoon. They lit cigarettes and looked at the sea. "Tell me, tell me," remarked Victor awkwardly, instead of a light tone flashed at him through the blue darkness.

"Mother Echo," ejaculated Jenny, and laid her head on his shoulder. "I like you, you know," she murmured.

"I dare say. I saw you with Varney this afternoon, remember?"

Victor's ear caught the sound of a quick footfall. He knew that two persons had halted immediately behind the balcony. He turned to Jenny and asked her very distinctly, "Honestly, now, do you care at all about Varney?"

"Varney amuses me, but I am really fond of you."

Standing intently, he heard a sound close at hand like a faint cough. The moment after Leslie, on the arm of the subaltern, swept past, but she seated in the deep shadow. He could see her face. Surprised, he perceived that her expression was not one of relief, but of acute pain.

CHAPTER XV.

MRS. VARNEY was not seen on deck or in the saloon the last day of the ship's run. She retreated to her cabin after the third fourth dance, alleging faintness.

She knew now that she loved Victor. The truth had been revealed to her when she saw him seated with the other woman's head against his shoulder, when she had heard her declare that she cared for him. She would never forget that night as long as she lived.

Victor! The first man to whom she had yielded for the—no doubt he had kissed the other woman's scores and scores of times. He would make love to her in the same way—no doubt he had done so. Her endearments would have a fierce, passionate, longing. She let her face sink into the cushion and in the stuff to prevent herself from crying out.

She had not afforded to pretend not to care, and now she saw that she really had not cared. She liked Oswald humbly, and the thought of his last foible always evoked an affectionate smile, he rarely bored her, he was above all, Penny's father; but she had never been in love with him. That was absurd, ridiculous, to her now.

She asked herself whether she had fallen in love with Victor all over again after he had left her, but she merely shuddered at the decided, of course, that it had never died. She would not call the parcel of memories and the myriad distractions of the past few months love. She had only waited for something. There had been a void which ever her little boy had not been able to fill, and she had found Victor's absence at the time, accepting consolations for finding no substitute. She had only been unhappy since she had spent on the same ship as her husband. And the sum of voices in the saloon, she could distinguish his talking with others or listening to others her ear was ever on the alert for the mere sound of his name.

He was the man she had loved and married, romantic, wonderful, unsullied. At moments it pleased her to betray some and hardly trait or gesture, she delighted at the chasm he had acquired with the years, at his weakness in the nobility which suffering and loneliness had lent to him.

Yet that Valid Varney was the descendant of a hundred barons, some of whom had left their bones on the battlefields of France and Syria; and Victor Steele, V. C., was the son of a nobody and an adventurer.

Some day" he had said to her that day in their London lodgings, "you will be proud of being my wife." She was very proud—she would be proud of her affection was not beneath her self-contempt.

And withal, when she thought of him, feeling that Melas woman, she hated him frenetically.

Had he loved her before their kisses at Hastings? Had his kisses come to her fresh from those pale lips? Leslie asked herself these questions. She had believed herself to be his dream woman, his ideal.

She drew herself out of bed, settling her teeth in a towel.

"Marseilles! Marseilles in the grey morning!" she thought. She was still in bed when Mrs. Melas entered dressed ready for the day.

"Sorry you have been so queer," she began. "I've come to say good-by. I have to get off at Marseilles to catch the train for Monte. I expect to meet an old friend there and shall stay some days. I hope we shall meet in London."

"You may see Vicky—Captain Steele—any way, for he is going to stay in Marseilles and intends to take the night train. I wanted him to come on to Monte with me, but he wouldn't."

"Had a very old friend of yours isn't he?" asked Leslie, thankful for the dim light.

"Well, yes. I knew him when he was quite a lad."

"Ah! Jenny had got his commission."

Mrs. Melas, very sensitive about her antecedents and social position, felt that she had been trapped into a dangerous admission.

"The circumstances were peculiar," she said rather pompously, "but Vicky broke into a long, not unpleasant giggle, as she was wont to do when taken off her guard by a scores and scores of times. He would make love to her in the same way—no doubt he had done so. Her endearments would have a fierce, passionate, longing. She let her face sink into the cushion and in the stuff to prevent herself from crying out.

She had not afforded to pretend not to care, and now she saw that she really had not cared. Eat an Apple a Day to Help Boom New England

Eat at least an apple a day and improve your health and the prosperity of New England. This is the slogan of the Apple Consumers' League of New England, which has issued a "Housekeepers' Apple Book," giving 197 apple recipes. Here are two of them:

APPLE OMELET—I.

To eight large apples stewed very soft and mashed fine add one cup of sugar and flavor with nutmeg or cinnamon. When cold stir in three well-beaten eggs and one-half tablespoon cornstarch dissolved in two tablespoons of milk. Stir well and bake slowly twenty minutes. Serve hot.

APPLE OMELET—II.

Separate four eggs; beat whites to a very stiff froth; then add the yolks and beat again, adding gradually two tablespoons of powdered sugar. Have ready an omelet pan, in which one tablespoon of butter has been melted; pour the egg mixture into the pan, and when it begins to thicken spread over it a layer of apple sauce. Fold, turn onto a hot platter and serve at once with powdered sugar.

SHOE TRADE IS STIMULATED; COTTON GAINS

Improvement in trade conditions this week has been marked. Exportation of cotton is on a greater scale than for months, and foreign orders which deal in this commodity may reopen before long. Business in the Middle West is most satisfactory, according to reliable reports. In the extreme West crop money will soon be spent for a vast variety of merchandise. The war is stimulating the shoe trade of New England, and with cheap cotton its mills should make a great deal of money. Confidence, in fact, seems to be the key to the prosperity situation.

There is no better sign of business revival than the demand for cigars and tobacco. Under the caption "The Turning of the Tide," President C. A. Whelan says in behalf of the United Cigar Stores Co., the great retail tobacconists in the world: "The amount of sales in our stores throughout the United States for October was the largest in the history of the company—including the big holiday month, excepted. The great Middle West leads in this most encouraging evidence of industrial revival."

As to stock market resumption, R. G. Dun and Co. say: "Regarding stocks and bonds dependent upon the stock exchanges, the situation is more difficult to discuss. The effect of foreign selling will be more direct upon these securities, but we hope that through restricted dealings and judicious handling of the situation the market equilibrium will before many months be restored. When the opening of the exchanges be followed by a material decline in prices, we think any purchases of good stocks and bonds should be made, as business in this country cannot long be definitely held in check, and it is our opinion that, barring unforseen complications, this country may soon enter upon a period of great prosperity, in which both big and little bushes will share."

The copper market seems to have more life and good inquiries for the metal are reported. It is understood that Germany and Austria are greatly in need of the copper, but the visible supply, ashore and afloat, for England and France increased 1,772 tons during October. The gain at Rotterdam was 200 tons.

One interesting statement concerning the stock exchange situation is that large banking and insurance interests are opposed to immediate reopening because they desire in their report for the year ending December 31, to reckon security assets upon the basis of closing prices on July 30, and fear they would go lower.

"BLOOD WILL TELL"

The Heroes of the War.

"Blood will tell," is an axiom that in all the ages has never been gain-said. Every man who does a brave, heroic act carries within his veins a quality of blood that urges and sustains him. No matter whether he inherits it from a long line of famous ancestors or from the sound and healthy constitution of his immediate parents, WORTH only distinction is honorable toil and a simple, virtuous life.

It matters little to you or how you obtain it, but it matters all the world that by some means you possess good blood. Good blood is first, last and always the making of manly men and womanly women. It is the source of all courage, virtue and happiness.

A man can not be made out of one that's "used-up," bilious and dyspeptic. It's done by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which puts the torpid liver into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, cleanses, repairs, and strengthens the system, and restores health and vigor. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, it sets at work all the processes of digestion and nutrition and thus builds up flesh and strength. It's the only blood and Liver Remedy that's guaranteed, in every case, to benefit or cure. If it doesn't do all that's claimed for it, the money is promptly refunded. But it keeps its promises—that's the reason it can be sold in this way.

It is not a secret remedy, for its ingredients are printed on wrapper. You only pay for the good you get. "Discovery" strengthens. Weak Lungs relieves Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and Kindred affections.

OPTIMISTICS

The Rahn Larmon Company of Cincinnati has received from abroad a $10,000 order for twine to be used in shaping shrapnel.

The Cincinnati Abattoir Company has received contracts for canned meat which total more than $3,500,000.

* * *

F. Westphal & Company of New York have invested more than $100,000 in American cutlery since the war began. It looks as if the demand for "Made in America" knives is going to be unprecedented.

* * *

It took Richmond, Va., business men and bankers only twenty-six minutes to subscribe $303,000 towards the cotton pool.

* * *

The Maine Central road reports for September that its net, after taxes increased about $5,000, compared with the corresponding 1913 month.

* * *

It is stated that New York banks have agreed to loan cotton brokers about $11,000,000 to take care of contracts until 1915. A good sentiment in cotton circles materially.

* * *

Imports at the port of Boston last week decreased $1,595,000 and exports increased $1,250,000, which shows how fast the balance of trade is turning in favor of this country.

Italy and Egypt have been large buyers of American coal since the war began.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

The selection of our salon, now being held in the ballroom of the Copley-Plaza, is meeting with great success. The attendance is excellent and during the evening was is received only one kind of a character as to indicate conclusively the appreciation of the kind is an attraction for Boston tastes.

Yesterday several bona fide orders for enclosed electrics were received and a number of prospects were booked. The Professional Women's Club, which held its meeting in the Copley-Plaza during the afternoon visited the exhibit in a body and expressed themselves as pleased with and inspecting a salon of this character, which appeals so strongly to womankind.

Manager H. B. Curtis, of the Splendorf Electrical Company, has taken possession of his new Boston headquarters at 1120 Boylston street. The change was made in order to secure quarters sufficiently enough to take care of the constantly increasing business of the company as much as to secure location in the heart of Boston's motordom.

C. F. Redden, who has been general sales manager of the Maxwell Motor Company of Detroit, has relinquished that position. Mr. Redden has returned from a four months' trip in the interests of the Maxwell Co. to Europe, and it is possible that he will undertake some special work in the near future in this line.

The State registrations in California for the month of September show that in that month 1052 new cars were registered, of which 957 were Fords. The next closest manufacturer sold 11 cars. In other words the Ford sold more than one-half of all the cars bought in California in September. These are large sales. They make a pretty good sign of the times for the entire motor car industry. It is a good indication of national confidence and optimism.

Plan $1,000,000 Mosque for the Pacific Coast

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 4.—Convinced that the Mohammedans of the Pacific Coast would welcome and support a Mosque here, Khan Bahadur Mirza Ali of Oxnard has made a tentative survey for a suitable location of the proposed building. Sites in and near Pasadena were considered and rough estimates upon the cost of construction were secured. It is believed a structure which would equal the Mosque in Paris will be built here for $1,000,000.

"There are at least 2,000 followers of the Islam faith in California," Mohammed Abdul Hakk said.

Home Slave Happiest Wife, Says Mrs. Logan

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—"Formerly woman might work from a gallied sinus in the home, yet I venture the assertion that there was more contentment then than now in the history of homes," Mrs. John A. Logan told the Chicago Women's Club.

Twenty-one New Haven Directors CRIMINALLY Indicted

Twenty-one directors of the New Haven Railroad have been indicted CRIMINALLY.

They have not been indicted for "wrecking" the railroad or for "looting its treasury." Both these things were done under the eyes of those directors, but the directors are indicted for violating a CRIMINAL statute of the United States.

They entered into "contracts and combinations, or conspiracies in restraint of trade." "They monopolized, or attempted to monopolize, or conspired, with other persons to monopolize" the railroads, docks, steamboats, trolleys and other means of transportation of five New England States.

What New Haven directors actually did in carrying out their conspiracy was to acquire control, for the most part in secret, and under disguised forms of ownership, of nine of the ten independent competing railroads of the New England States; 91 per cent. of all the freight hauled and 95 per cent. of all the passengers carried; twenty-two of the thirty steamboats composed 85 per cent. of all water transportation, 1,500 miles out of 1,625 miles of trolleys, 91 per cent. of the mileage and traffic and street railways and most of the wharf and dock privileges.

It might be possible to think of each separate step in this great conspiracy, an innocent step dictated by ordinary business policy in an age of industrial combination and consolidation, if it were not for one thing—the fact that the men in their most important steps wore corporate masks, concealing their corporate purposes behind false names and denied in one character what they had done in another character—sometimes under oath, and spent fortunes in corrupting public officials, molding public opinion and in evading the law.

They were all so intent on creating an unlawful monopoly that the management and welfare of the railroad confided to them as directors was utterly neglected, the equipment became old, the signals obsolete, the "cross-overs" antique, and the entire railroad, the richest in the United States with one exception, became at last so inferior and unsafe that in a series of appalling "accidents" FIFTY-THREE PEOPLE WERE KILLED AND MORE THAN FOUR HUNDRED MAIMED.

Monopoly and manslaughter went hand in hand, because these men, careless of the lives of passengers and contemptuous of law, were intent only on their own purpose. To accomplish that they were willing to do anything that was necessary, even to undermine the very foundations of government and society.

The fact that some of the men indicted for doing these things were leaders in the community, governors of clubs, high officers of churches—the fact that in their private life they were among the most exemplary as well as the most honored and likable of our citizens—does not change the fact that when and if in their public or financial capacities they did these criminal and unrighteous things they then became in a public sense only highly respectable scoundrels.

Many years ago there was a series of railway disasters in England, due to criminal neglect of directors and managers, and a Parliamentary commissioner investigated them. Punch expressed the general verdict in a great cartoon showing "the way to prevent such railway accidents—tie the most influential directors in front of the locomotive."

There is only one way to prevent such national calamities as the New Haven scandal. That is by putting some of the most influential guilty directors in the penitentiary, because there is in the whole country no more dangerous and destructive a KIND of criminal than the kind of corporation that was here created, having more than two hundred different names, but only one motive and purpose, and that a criminal one.

We do not know of any individual crime in the United States that has had more dire consequences to life, to property or to society in the past decade than the New Haven crime. Its consequences have included both murder and robbery. It has tainted Legislatures and Executives. It has polluted the sources of power in this country.

Among the principal directors criminally indicted—most of the directors were, of course, mere dummies and did not know what was being done—are William Rockefeller and George F. Baker, the latter the richest banker in America and the closest friend of the late J. P. Morgan, who conceived the New Haven monopoly.

It is to be noted that Mr. Mellen, president of the New Haven, who was Mr. Morgan's personal appointee and chief railway aid, IS NOT AMONG THOSE INDICTED, and we think properly so.

The universal confidence and good will of the public belong to Attorney-General Gregory and to Howard Elliott, and the new board of the New Haven—to the former for his EFFORT to punish the guilty, and to the latter in their effort to save the great New Haven property from the wreck the late board made of it.

THE SILENT SLANDERER

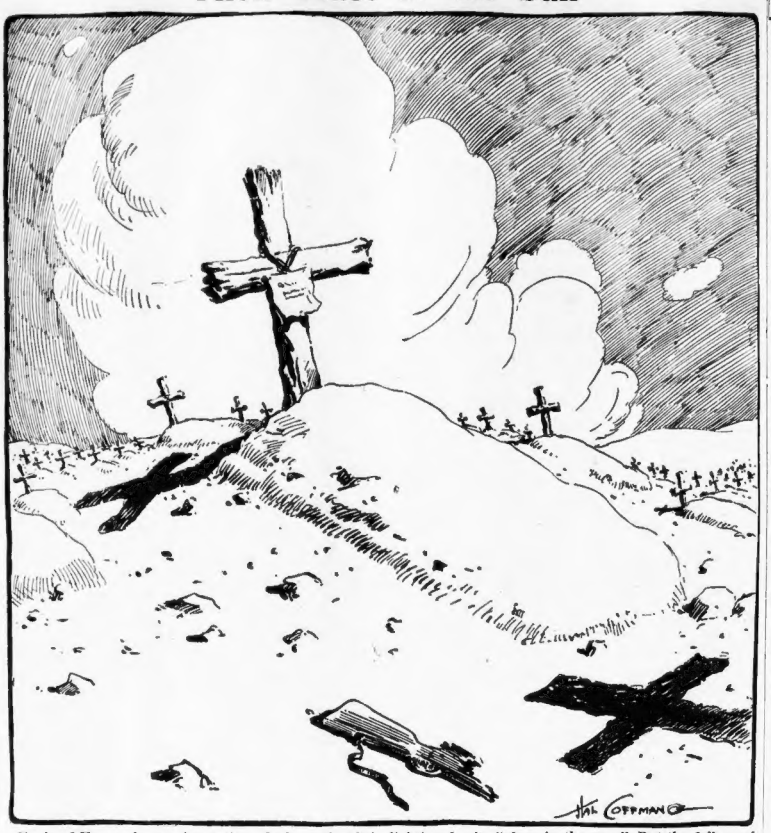
By WILLIAM F. KIRK

He speaks no ill of any man,
Nor tries to slur a maiden's name.
He cannot stoop, as gossips can,
To cry aloud a brother's shame.
But when an absent friend is slurred
He dare not rise and say one word.

Who hears a friend by slander stung
Without one move, one angry stir,
With no defence quick on his tongue
Is but a silent slanderer.
A friend is one who, night or day,
Will fight your fight when you're away.

You are no friend unless you do
Your all to shield a friend's fair name;
He is no sterling friend to you
Who will not swiftly do the same.
For, if he will not check a slur,
He is a silent slanderer.

Their Place in the Sun



Each of Europe's warring nations declares that it is fighting for its "place in the sun." But the fallen soldier's place in the sun is marked by only a rude cross at the head of his alien grave

The Hymn of the Republic

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

I HAVE listened to the sighing of the burdened and the bound,
I have heard it change to crying, with a menace in the sound;
I have seen the money getters pass unheeding on the way,
As they went to forge new fetters for the people day by day.

Then the voice of Labor thundered forth its purpose and its need,
And I marveled, and I wondered, at the cold dull ear of greed;
For as chimes, in some great steeple, tell the passing of the hour,
So the voices of the people tell the death of purchased power.

All the gathered dust of ages God is brushing from His book;
He is opening up its pages, and he bids His children look;
And in shock and conflagration, and in pestilence and strife,
He is speaking to the nations of the brevity of life.

Mother earth herself is shaken by our sorrows and our crimes,
And she bids her sons awaken to the portent of the times;
With her travail pains upon her, she is hurling from their place
All the minions of dishonor, to admit the Coming Race.

By the voice of Justice bidden, she has torn the mask from might.
All the shameful secrets hidden, she is dragging into light;
And whoever wrongs his neighbor must be brought to judgment now,
Though he wear the badge of Labor, or a crown upon his brow.

God is calling to the masses, to the peasant, and the peer;
He is calling to all classes that the crucial hour is near;
For each rotting throne must tremble and fall broken in the dust,
With the leaders who dissemble and betray a people's trust.

Still the voice of God is calling, and above the wreck I see,
And beyond the gloom appalling, the great Government-to-Be.
From the ruins it has risen, and my soul is overjoyed,
For the School supplants the prison, and there are no "unemployed."

And there are no children's faces at the spindle or the loom;
They are out in sunny places, where the other sweet things bloom.
God has purified the alleys. He has set the white slaves free,
And they own the hills and valleys in this Government-to-Be.

How Helen Helped

Chapter X.—A STRANGE APPOINTMENT

HELEN told Frank that the whole office knew of the forgery, and on account of his former drinking some of the employes suspected Frank of being the guilty person.

As Frank was dictating the answers to the morning mail to Helen, she noticed he was greatly worried and abstracted. Finally, she said to him when no one was near to hear, "Try not to worry any more about that forged check, Frank; both of us know who did it, and I'm sure we'll find a way to trap him. We'll have to make him confess, though, for I'm certain Old Man Van Buren would never believe his son did it any other way."

That afternoon Frank saw Paul Van Buren in the office talking to Helen, and, strange to relate, Helen appeared to be deeply interested in what he was saying. This seemed strange to Frank, for he knew how Helen detested the mere sight of young Van Buren. That evening, saying nothing to any one about where she was going, Helen went to meet Paul Van Buren.
